

UNIVERSITÄTS-BIBLIOTHEK
PADERBORN

Universitätsbibliothek Paderborn

Miscellaneous works Of The Late Philip Dormer Stanhope, Earl Of Chesterfield

Consisting Of Letters to his Friends, never before printed, And Various Other Articles

Chesterfield, Philip Dormer Stanhope of Dublin, 1777

Index To The Letters To His Friends.

urn:nbn:de:hbz:466:1-52077

I N D E X

T O

THE LETTERS TO HIS FRIENDS.

A.

- ADOLPHATI (musician). III success of, II. 402.
Amazons (a tragedy). Written by Madame de Bocage, III. 99, in the note.
Angola (a novel). Account of, III.
74, and in the note.
Ann (queen). State of affairs in England at her death, II. 304.
Anti-Lucretius (a poem). Lord Che-sterfield's opinion of it, II. 356.
Account of the author, ditto, in
the note.

B.

- Babiole*. Lord Chesterfield's house at Blackheath, why so called, II. 354, in the note. Description of 410. Changes its name to Little Chartreuse, III. 84.
Bagatelle. Country-house near Paris, belonging to Madame de ———, II. 354.
Bath Waters. Their utility in disorders of the head and stomach,
III. 334.
Bentinck (Count). Account of, III.
217, and in the note. Appointed with prince Kaunitz to settle the affairs at Brussels, 248, and
in the note.
Beuningen (Van). Singular anecdote of, III. 212.
Bocage (Madame de). Account of, III. 8, in the note. 96, in the note.
Bochat (Mr. de). Account of, III.
170, in the note. 171, and in the note.
VOL. III.

- Bolingbroke* (Lord). Afflicted with a cancerous disorder in his cheek,
III. 38. His death, 44.
Botta D'Adorno (Marquis). Account of, III. 229, and in the note.
Bougainville (Mr.). Account of, II.
399, in the note.
Boudoir. A room in Lord Chester-field's house so called, II. 382.
Bower, Esq; (Archibald). Not a true convert, III. 305.
Brenles (Monf. de). III. 173, and
in the note.
Bristol (Earl of). Appointed envoy to Turin in the room of the earl of Rochford, III. 269.
Buffy (Le Comte de). Account of III. 74, in the note. 193, and
in the note.
Byng (Admiral). His disagreeable situation described, III. 290.

C.

- Catiline* (a tragedy). Criticisms upon it, II. 394, 396.
Centurioni (Marquis). Character
of II. 404, 405.
Chenevix (Rev. Dr. now bishop of Waterford). Letters of the earl of Chesterfield to him, III. 313, to 394. His disappointment of the living of St. Olave's Southwark, 315, and in the note. Is refused the bishopric of Clonsfert, 318. Reasons given for that refusal, 318, in the note. Is made bishop of Killaloe, 319. A charitable scheme set on foot by him for affording a refuge to French protestants in Ireland, 325, 326.
Death of his wife, 327, in the note. Account of his son's death, 394.

F f

Chester-

Chesterfield (Earl of). His letters to the Rev. Mr. Jouneau. II. 294, to 302. His account of his studies, and way of spending his time at Cambridge, 298. His opinion of the state of affairs in England at the death of queen Ann, 304. His letter to Mr. Crebillon, 324. His opinion of Voltaire's tragedy of Mahomet, 326. His letter to Madame de Tencin, recommending Mrs. Cleland, 328, &c. His correspondence with a lady of high rank and great accomplishments at Paris, whose name is concealed, from III. 94, to 336. His criticisms on Voltaire's poetical description of the battle of Fontenoy, 338. Introduces his son to the lady whom he writes to, 340. Mentions his design of sending him to Paris at fourteen years of age, under the care of the Rev. Mr. Harte, ditto. His affection for his son, 344. His plan of education for him, ditto. His sentiments about the peace, and negociations at Breda, 350. His reasons for resigning the office of secretary of state, 362. His account of the peace, and of the expences of the war, 368, 370. His opinion of the Peruvian letters, 374. His description of a room in his house called abouloir, or pouting-room, 382. His account of a book called les Mæurs, which he supposed to be written by Montesquieu, 384. His opinion of the French theatre, 390. Mentions the death of his brother the Honble. John Stanhope, 392. His criticisms upon Crebillon's tragedy of Catiline, 394, 396. His opinion of a tragedy called Dionysius the Tyrant, written by Mr. Marmontel, 398. His opinion of the translation of Anti-Lucretius, 400. His opinion of the Marquis de Centurioni, 404, 405. His account of the earthquake of the year 1750, in London, 428. His method of disposing of his son at Paris, 432. His reasons for making him reside in the academy, 434, 436. His character of Abbé Sallier, 438. His anecdotes of persons concerned in the rebellion, III. 1. &c. His recommendation of lord Huntingdon, 4. His account of Voltaire's retiring to Berlin, 8, 106. His opinion of Madame de Graffigny's comedy of Cenie, 8, 116; and of Madame de Bocage's translation of Milton, and Pope's Temple of Fame, 8. His reasons for leaving his son without a tutor at Paris, 16. His character of the Abbé de la Ville, 22. His regulation of his son's expences at Paris, 26. His account of the change of the style, 30. His account of lord Bolingbroke, 38. His character of him, 44. His account of the success of inoculation, 54. His opinion of the young lord Bolingbroke, 66. His reasons for changing the name of his country-house from Babiolle to Little Chartreuse, 84. His letters to Madame de Bocage, from 96, to 134. His description of Baron Kreunigen, 98. His opinion of Voltaire's writings, 102. Introduces his son to her, 102. Introduces Lord Huntingdon to her, 108. His opinion of Cardinal Richelieu's political will, and of Voltaire's pleading against it, 112. His opinion of some of Sir George Etheredge's comedies, 118. His opinion of Terence's comedies, 122. His criticism on a satyrical work written by Mr. Duclos, 124, and in the note. His opinion of Voltaire's history of the age of Lewis XIV. 134. His letter to Mr. De Kreunigen, 136. His letter to Lady ———, on the subject of humour, 138. His letter to James Dayrolles, Esq; &c.

&c. 152. His letters to Solomon Dayrolles, Esq; from 154 to 302. Expresses his anxiety for the security of the Dutch frontier in 1747, 164. His opinion of the surrender of Bergen-op-zoom, 168. His reasons for retiring from public affairs, 176. His account of resigning the seals, 177. His brother appointed commissioner of the admiralty, 179. A pamphlet ascribed to him, 182, and in the note. His ignorance of the author, 183. His opinion of the necessity of the peace in 1748, 184, 185, 186. His opinion of Lord Pembroke's seat at Wilton, 190. His opinion of the history of the wars between France and the house of Austria, 191. His political reasons for the queen of Hungary's delay in entering into the definitive treaty, 192, 194, 196. His account of the dismissal of the grand pensionary of Holland, 212. Applies for a prebend for the Rev. Mr. Harte tutor to his son, 217. Obtains it, 219. Congratulates Mr. Dayrolles on his marriage, 223. His opinion of the state of politics in Holland at the death of the Prince of Orange, 226. His advice for the conduct of the princess dowager of Orange during the minority, 228. Congratulates Mr. Dayrolles on the birth of a son, to whom he was godfather, 238. His plan of education for his godson, 239. His opinion of the punishment of children, 243. His opinion with respect to the connexions of England with the houses of Austria and Bourbon, 248. Mentions his writing some papers in a weekly paper called The World, 257. His account of Spa, 263, 264. His reasons for going to London in the winter, 266. Thinks Mr. Fox will be minister, 268. Thinks there will be no war in 1755, 269. His account of the state of parliament in 1755, 269. His political opinions in 1755, 270, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278. Error in them, 278, in the note. His account of the loss of Minorca, and the bad situation of affairs in England and America in 1756, 284, 285, 286. Describes Admiral Byng's unfortunate situation, 290. His political opinions in 1757, 290. His account of the ministry in 1757, 292, 293, 294, 296. Effect which his ill state of health had upon his political opinions, 294, in the note. His letters to Sir Thomas Robinson, 303 to 306. His intimacy with Sir Thomas, 303, in the note. His opinion of the attempt upon the king of France's life, 304. His opinion of Archibald Bower's conversion, 305. His letter to doctor Cheyne, 307. His letters to the Rev. Doctor Chenevix Lord Bishop of Waterford, 313 to 394. Deplores the loss of Lord Scarborough, 313. Recommends Dr. Chenevix to the bishopric of Clonfert, 317. Account of his resignation, and the reasons for it, 321. and in the note. His approbation and encouragement of the scheme for affording a refuge to French protestants in Ireland, 325, 326. His condolence with the bishop on the death of Mrs. Chenevix, 327. Complains much of the decline of his health, and of deafness, 329, &c. Finds much benefit from the Bath waters, 334, &c. His opinion of archbishop Tillotson, 339, 340. Is made member of the academy of Belles Lettres at Paris, 341. His opinion of Sheridan's book on British education, 344, 345. His opinion of Swift's History of the four last years of Queen Ann, 352. His instructions for raising melons, 362. His account of

- Mr. George Faulkner's mode of living in England, 364. His character of Lord Hallifax, 366. His character of Lord Hertford, 376. His opinion of Lord Townshend, 379. Adopts the son of his kinsman Mr. Stanhope of Mansfield, 380. His account of that young gentleman, ditto. His account of Lord Mountmorris, 387. His letter of condolence to the bishop, upon the loss of his son; which letter is probably the last he ever wrote to him, 394, and in the note. His letters to Mr. Prior, 395 to 404. His account of a successful method of making starch from potatoes, 395, 396. His thoughts on the kingdom of Ireland, and the points that ought to engage the attention of the people of that country, 397, 400, 402, 403. His letter to the Rev. Dr. Madden, 404. His letter to the Rev. Dr. Whitcombe, 405. His letters to Captain (afterwards Sir John) Irwine, 407 to 422. His observations upon the famous Irish patriot Dr. Lucas, 408, 409. His opinion of Marshal Richelieu, 418. His political opinion concerning Corsica, ditto. His account of the death of the Duke of Newcastle, ditto. His letter to Dean Swift, 423. His letters to the Earl of Stair, 427 to 431.
- Chetwynd*, Esq; (William). III. 172.
- Cheyne*, (Dr.) Letter from Lord Chesterfield to him, communicated by the Countess of Chesterfield, III. 307. and in the note.
- Children*, how to be educated, III. 239. For what faults to be punished, 243. Should be left to chuse their own profession, 286.
- Cobentzel* (Count). Account of, III. 266, in the note.
- Corsica* (island of). Political opinion concerning it, III. 418.
- Crebillon* (Mr.). His letters to Lord Chesterfield, II. 312, 316. His criticisms on the Sopha a novel written by himself, 302. 314. His banishment on account of this book, 314. His exile repealed, 318. His criticisms on Pamela, 320. 322.
- Crebillon* (Senior). Anecdotes relating to some of his tragedies, II. 394, in the note.
- Cumberland* (Duke of). Appointed with Mr. Fox of the regency, III. 270.

D.

- D'Albert* (Chevalier). Account of, II. 366.
- Dayrolles*, Esq; (Solomon). Appointed resident at the Hague, upon the death of his uncle James Dayrolles, III. 160. His marriage, 223. Is appointed envoy to Brussels, 231.
- D'Ennery* (Monsieur). Account of, III. 58, in the note.
- D'Eyverdun* (Mr.). Account of, III. 301, in the note.
- D'Her* (Chevalier). Account of letters published under that name, II. 387, in the note.
- Dionysius* (a tragedy). Account of, II. 398.
- Duncan* (Mr.) Account of, III. 206, in the note.

E.

- Elliot* (General). Account of, III. 210, in the note.
- Etheredge* (Sir George). Success of his comedy called Love in a Tub, III. 118, in the note.

F.

- Faulkner* (Mr. George). His mode of living in England described, III. 364.
- Finch* (the Hon. William). His recall from his embassy at the Hague, III. 156, in the note.
- Fontenelle* (Mr.) His postscript to Madame de Tencin's letter, II. 334-336. Account of his death, III. 290, and 291, in the note.

Fox (Mr.) Appointed of the regency with the Duke of Cumberland, III. 270.

France. Expectations of a war with
III. 280, 281.

Francis (Mr.) Account of his tragedy of Eugenia, III. 128. 130.

G.

Galen (Bernard Van). Account of,
III. 167, in the note.

Garrick (Mr.). His marriage with Signora Violetti, III. 215.

Graffigny (Madame de). Account of her comedy, III. 8, in the note.

H.

Haaren (Monsieur Van) Who? III,
250, and in the note.

Hague, universal joy expressed there at the conclusion of the peace in 1748, III. 185.

Hallifax (Lord). His appointment to the lord lieutenancy of Ireland,
III. 366. Character of him, do.

Hamilton (Duke of). Not murdered by Mr. Macartney, III. 353.

Harenc (Mr.). Account of, III. 131,
in the note.

Harrington (Lord). His appointment to the lord lieutenancy of Ireland,
III. 337.

Hertford (Lord). Appointed lord lieutenant of Ireland, III. 376.

Holderness (Earl of). Sent ambassador to the Hague, III. 206. Appoints Mr. Tindal his chaplain and secretary, ditto.

Holland (Grand Pensionary of). His dismission, and acceptance of a pension, III. 212. State of politics in that country at the death of the prince of Orange, 226.

Hop (Lieutenant General). Account of, III. 214, in the note.

Hungary (Queen of). Reasons for her delay in entering into the definitive treaty, III. 192, 194 196.

Huntingdon (Earl of). Character of him, III. 4.

Hutabins (the Rev. Mr.). Account of III. 316, and in the note.

I.

Jews, their naturalization bill passed, III. 253. Humorous advertisement on this occasion, ditto.

Inoculation, success of, III. 54.

Jouneau (the Rev. Mr.). Account of, II. 294. Account of his son, 8.

Irwine (Cap. now sir John). Account of, III. 199, in the note. Letters from Lord Chesterfield to him, 207 to 214. Account of, 204, in the note.

K.

Kaunitz (Prince). Appointed to settle the affairs at Bruffels, III.
248, and in the note.

Kreunigen (Baron de). Account of, III. 98, in the note; 136, in the note.

L.

L'Enclos (Ninon). Anecdote of, III.
104, in the note.

Letters (Peruvian). Character of them, II. 374.

London (Earthquake in). Account of, II. 428.

Lucas (Mr. Charles). Observations on, III. 408, 409.

M.

Mably (Abbe). Author of The Droit public de l'Europe, III.
187, and in the note.

Macartney (Mr.). Not guilty of the murder of duke Hamilton,
III. 353.

Madden (the Rev. Dr. Samuel).
Letter from lord Chesterfield to him, III. 404. Account of, 404, in the notes. Anecdote concerning a tragedy supposed to be written by him, 404, in the notes.

Marmontel (Mr.). Account of some of his works, II. 398, in the note. III success of his tragedy of Cleopatra, III. 102.

Mars (Monsieur de Cinq). Account of, II. 396, in the note.

Martel

- Martel* (Madame de). Her letter to lord Chesterfield, II 308.
- Martin* (Mr.). Account of, III. 42, in the note.
- Mascow* (Professor). III. 171, in the note.
- Memnon*, philosophical tale by Voltaire, III. 174, and in the note. Opinion of it, 174.
- Ministry* (British). Account of, in 1757, III. 292 to 296.
- Minorca*, loss of, III. 284.
- Moeurs* (les). Account of a book so called, II. 384.
- Mountmorris* (Lord). Character of, III. 287.
- Richmond* (Duke of). His death, II. 438.
- Robinson* (Sir Thomas). Lord Chesterfield's letters to him, III. 303 to 306. His intimacy with lord Chesterfield, 303, in the note.
- Rochford* (Earl of). Appointed lord Chamberlain, III. 269.
- Rodriguez*. Who? III. 174, and in the note.
- Romans* (King of the). To be elected at Hanover in 1752, III. 232. Importance of that election, ditto, and 233. Delay of it, 236.

N.

- Newcastle* (Duke of). Moves for the repeal of the Jew bill, III. 255, His death, 418.
- Nivernois* (Monsieur de). Character of, II. 406.

O.

- Orange* (Prince of). His regulation of the post at Amsterdam, III. 191, and the note. His death, 226.
- Orange* (Princess Dowager of). Rules for her conduct during the minority, III. 228.

P.

- Parliament*, state of, in 1755, III. 269.
- Pelham* (Mr.). His death, III. 261.
- Pembroke* (Earl of). Account of his feat at Wilton, III. 190.
- Pitt* (Mr.). Made secretary of state, III. 289.
- Prior* (Mr.). Letters from lord Chesterfield to him, III. 395 to 404. Account of, 395, in the note.
- Prussia* (King of). Reasons why he should not attack Hanover, III. 248, 249.

R.

- Rebellion*. Anecdotes of persons concerned in, III. 2, &c.

S.

- Sallier* (Abbe). Account of, II. 358, in the note.
- Saxe* (Marshal). Account of his funeral, III. 120, in the note.
- Sheridan* (Mr.). Account of his book on British education, III. 344, 345.
- Spa*. Account of, III. 263, 264.
- Stanhope* (the Hon. George). Obtains the rank of Colonel, III. 179. Who? ditto, in the note.
- Stanhope* (Hon. John). Brother to the Earl of Chesterfield. Account of his death, II. 392, in the note, III. 199.
- Style*. Change of, III. 30.
- Swift* (the Rev. Dr.). His history of the four last years of queen Ann censured, II. 352. His letters to the earl of Chesterfield, soliciting him for a place for Mr. Launcelot, who had married a relation of his, III. 422, 425.

T.

- Tax* (new). Levied in Holland, account of its produce, III. 167, in the note.
- Tencin* (Madame de). Account of, II. 329, in the note. Her letter to lord Chesterfield, 332.
- Tillotson* (Archbishop). Character of, III. 339, 340.
- Toussaint* (Mr.). Author of a book entitled Les Moeurs, account of him, him, in the note, II. 384.

Townshend (Lord). Appointed lord lieutenant of Ireland, III. 379.
Trenck (Baron). A dog why so called, III. 187, and in the note, 188, 190.

U.

Vanderduyn (Lieutenant-General). Account of, III. 193, and in the note.
Ubbergue. Country-seat of count Welderen, III. 165, in the note.
Ville (Abbe de la). Account of, II. 400.
Villettes, Esq; (Arthur). Account of, III. 407, in the note.
Voltaire. Honours and pensions bestowed upon him by the king of Prussia, III. 8. His letter to the earl of Chesterfield, 144.

W.

Waldeck (Prince). His corps how it ought to be disposed of, III. 166.

Walpole (Mr. Horatio). Appointed ambassador and plenipotentiary to the States General, III. 156, and in the note.

Wassenaer de Twickel (Count). His letter of congratulation to lord Chesterfield on his being appointed secretary of state, III. 140. His account of the deplorable state of Holland, 142.

World. A periodical paper, in which lord Chesterfield wrote, III. 257.

Y.

Yorke (Colonel). Appointed ambassador to the States General, III. 229.

T H E E N D.