TO THE SAME.

Bath, Oct. 7. 1752.

DEAR DAYROLLES,

BEFORE this packet will reach you, another little round packet of mine probably will; I mean Mr. Stanhope, who, by a letter of the 26th of September, which I have just received from him from Hanover, acquaints me, that he is fetting out to make his court to you at Bruffels. I know your friendship for me too well to want any new proofs of it; and therefore I do very ferioufly infift, whatever either your friendship to me, or your attention to him, might otherwise make you intend, that you do not make him lodge in your house. Let him be your guest at dinner or supper, as often as you please, but very positively no longer. A dissipated young fellow of twenty is a very improper piece of furniture in a regular family. In short, en un mot comme en mille, all ceremony apart, I will not have him lodge in your house. Au reste, I put him entirely into your hands, do whatever else you will with him. Thrust him into company. Pray inform him a little of the affairs of the barrière and tarif, which are not of a fecret nature; and inform me truly, and de bonne foi, how you find him now. Has he better air, address, and manners, than when you saw him last? I beg of you to reprimand him feriously if he has not. As being mine, look upon him as your own; as I should look upon my godfon as mine, being yours, were he with me, and of an age to be rebuked and reprimanded for his good.

I have been here now just a week, blistering, pumping, and drinking; by all which I think I have gained a little, though very little as to my hearing.

Yours most affectionately,

C.
