Universitätsbibliothek Paderborn

Montaigne's Essays

In Three Books. With Notes and Quotations. And an Account of The Author's Life ; With a short Character of the Author and Translator, by the late Marquis of Halifax; With the Addition of A Complete Table to each Volume

Montaigne, Michel Eyquem de
London, 1743

Chap. X. Of managing the Will.

$$
\text { Of managing the Will. } \quad 263
$$

was a Paradoxical Command anciently given us by the God of Delpbos, Look into your Jelf, difcover your Jelf, Reep clofe to your felf; call back your Mind and Will, that elfewbere confume themfelves, into jour folf; you run out, jou fill your Jelf, carry a more feady Hand: Men betray jou, Men fpill you, Men feal you from your felf. Doft not thou fee that this World we live in keeps all it's Sights confined within, and it's Eyes open to contemplate it felf? 'Tis always Vanity for thee, both within and without, but 'tis lefs Vanity when lefs extended. Excepting thee, ( O Man) faid that God, every Thing fludies it felf firft, and has Bounds to it's Labours and Defires, according to it's need. There is nothing fo empty and neceflitous as thou who embraceft the Univerfe, thou art the Explorator without Knowledge, the Magiftrate without Jurifdiction ; and after all, the Fool in the Play.

FEW Things, in comparifon of what commonly affect other Men, move, or to fay better, poffefs me : For'tis but Reafon they fhould concern a Man, provided they have not taken Poffeffion of him. I am very folicitous, both by Study and Argument, to enlarge this Yrivilege of Infenfibility, which is naturally raifed to a pretty high Degree in me; fo that confequently I efpoufe, or am very much mov'd with very few Things. I am clear fighted enough ; but I fix upon very few Objects; have a Senfe delicate and tender enough, but an Apprehenfion and Application flubborn and negligent; I am very unwilling to engage my felf. As much as in me lies, I employ my felf wholly for my felf; and in this very Subject, fhould rather chufe to curb and reftrain my Affection from plunging it felf over Head and Ears into it, it being a Subject that I poffers at the Mercy of others, and over which Fortune has more Right than I. So that even fo much as to Health, which I fo much value, it were neceffary for me, not fo paffionately to covet and defire it, as to find Difeafes infupportable. A Man ought to moderate himfelf betwixt the Hatred of Pain, and Love of Pleafure, And Plato fets down a middle Path of Life betwix: both. But againft fuch Affections as wholly carry me away from my felf, and fix me elfewhere, againft thofe, I fay, I oppofe my felf with my utmoft Force and Power. ${ }^{3}$ Tis my Opinion, that a Man fhould lend himfelf to others, and only give himfelf to himfelf. Were my Will eafy to lend it felf out, and to be fway'd, I fhould not ftick there : I am too tender, both by Nature and Cuftom,

264 Montaigne's Effays.

-Fugax rerum, fecuraque in otia natus*.
Born and bred up in Negligence and Eafe.
for hot and obftinate Difputes wherein my Adverfary would at leaft have the better. The Iffue that would render my Heat and Obltinacy difgraceful, would perhaps vex me to the laft degree. Should I fet my felf to it at the rate that others do, who purfue and grafp at fo much, my Soul would never have the Force to bear the Emotions and Alarms; it would immediately be diforder'd by this inward Agitation. If fometimes I have been put upon the Management of other Mens Af fairs, I have promifed to take them in Hand, but not into my Lungs and Liver; to take them upon me, not to incorporate them: To take Pains for, but not to be paffionate in them: I have a care of them, but I will not brood upon them ; I have enough to do to order and govern the domeftick Tumults that I have in my own Veins and Bowels, without introducing a Crowd of other Mens Affairs; and am fufficiently concerned about my own proper and natural Bufinefs, without medling with the Concerns of others. Such as know how much they owe to themfelves, and how many Offices they are bound to of their own, find, that Nature has cut them out Work enough of their own to keep them from being idle. Thou haft Bufinefs enough at Home, look to that. Men let themfelves out to hire, their Faculties are not for themfelves, but to be employed for thofe to whom they have inflaved themfelves; this common Humour pleafes not me. We muft be thrifty of the Liberty of our Souls, and never let them out but upon jut Occafions, which are very few, if we judge aright. Do but obferve fuch as have accuitomed themfelves to be at every one's Call, they do it indifferently upon all, as well little as great Occafions; in that which nothing concerns them, as much as in what imports them moft: They incrude themfelves indifferently wherever there is Bufinefs, and are without Life, when not in the Buftle of Affairs, In negotius funt negotii caula*: They only feek Buffiness for Buffinefs Sake. It is not fo much that they will go, as it is that they cannot fand fill : Like a rolling Stone that cannot fop till it can go no farther. Bufinefs, in a certain Sort of Men, is a Mark of Underflanding, and they are honoured for it. Their Souls feek repofe in Agitation, as Children do by being rocked in a Cradle. They may pronounce themfelves as ferviceable to their Friends, as troublefom to themfelves. No one diftributes his Money to others, but every one therein diftributes his Time and his Life. There is nothing of which we are fo prodigal, as of thefe two Things, of which to be thrifty, would be both comimendable and ufeful. I am of a quite contrary Humour, I look to myfelf, and commonly covet with no great Ardour what I do defire, and defire little, employ and bufy my felf but rarely and temperately, at the fame rate. Whatever they take in Hand they do it with their utmof Power and Vehemency. There are therein fo many dangerous Steps, that for the more Safety, we muft a little lightly and fuperficially flide through the World, and not rufh thro it. Pleafure it felf is painful at the Bottom.

Of managing the Will.

[^0]```
-incedis per ignes
Suppofitos cineri dolofo *.
```

Thou upon glowing Coals doft tread, Under deceitful Afhes hid.

The Parliament of Bourdeaux chofe me Mayor of their City, at a Time when I was at a great Diftance from France, and much more remote from any fuch Thought; I intreated to be excufed, and refufed it. But I was told by my Friends, that I had committed an Error in 10 doing; and the greater, becaufe the King had moreover interpofed his Command in that Affair. 'Tis an Office that ought to be looked upon fo much more honourable, as it has no other Salary nor Advantage than the bare Honour of it's Execution! It continues two Years, but may be extended by a fecond Election, which very rarely happens: It was to me, and had never been fo but twice before; fome Years ago to Monfeur le Lanfac, and lately to Monfeur de Biron, Marefchal of France, in whofe Place I fucceeded, and left mine to Monjeur de Matignon, Marefcbal of France alfo. Proud of fo noble a Fraternity.

Uterque bonus pacis bellique minifer $\dagger$.

Both of them Men of worthy Character,

 For able Minifters in Peace and War.Fortune would have a Hand in my Promotion, by this particular Circumftance, which fhe put in of her own, not altogether vain; for Alexander difdain'd the Ambaffadors of Corinth, who came to make him a Tender of a Burgefs-fhip of their City; but when they proceeded to lay before him, that Baccbus and Hercules were alfo in the Regifter, he thankfully accepted the Offer. At my Arrival, I faithfully and confcientioufly reprefented myfelf to them for fuch as I find myfelf to be; a Man without Memory, without Vigilancy, without Experience, and without Vigour ; but withal, without Hatred, without Ambition, without Avarice, and without Violence, that they might be informed of my Qualities, and know what they were to expect from my Service. And being that the Knowledge they had had of my Father, and the Honour they had for his Memory, had been the only Motives to confer this Favour upon me, I plainly told them, that I fhould be very forry any thing fhould make fo great an Impreffion upon me as their Affairs, and the Concerns of their City had done upon him, whilit he had the fame Government to which they had prefer'd me. I very well remember, from a Boy, to have feen him in his Old Age, tormented with, and folicitous about the Publick Affairs, neglecting the foft Repofe of his own Houfe, to which the Declenfion of his Age had reduced him for feveral Years before ; the Management of his own Affairs, and his Health, and certainly defpifing his own Life, which was in great Danger of being loft, by being engag'd in long and painful Journies on their Behalf. Such was he, and this Humour of his proceeded from a marvellous good Nature. Never was there a more charitable and popular Man. Yet this Proceeding which I commend in others, I do not love to follow myfelf, and am not without Excufe. He had learnt that a Man muft forget himfelf for his Neighbour, and that Particulars were in no manner of Confideration in comparifon with the general Concern. Moft of the Rules and Precepts of this World run this way, to drive us out of ourfelves into the wide World, for the Benefit of a publick Society. They thought to do a great feat, to divert us from ourfelves, prefuming we were but too much fixed at home, and by a too natural Inclination, and have faid all they could to that purpofe : for 'tis no new thing for wife Men to preach things as they ferve, not as they are. Truth has it's Obftuctions, Inconveniences, and Incompatibilities with us. We muft be often deceived, that we may not deceive ourfelves; fhut our Eyes, and ftupify our Underftandings to redrefs and amend them. Imperiti enim judicant, $\mathcal{E}^{\circ}$ qui frequenter in boc ipfum fallendi funt, ne errent; for the ignorant judge, and therefore are oft to be deceived left they foould err. When they prefcribe us to love three, four, and fifty Degrees of things above ourfelves, they do like Archers, who to hit the Mark, take their Aim a great deal highef than the Butt. To fet a crooked Stick ftrait, we bend it the contrary way. I believe that in the Temple of Pallas, as we fee in all other Religions, there were apparent $M$ Ifferies to be expofed to the People, and others more fecret and high, that were only to be fhewn to fuch as were profefed. 'Tis likely that in there, the true Point of Friendfhip that every one owes to himfelf is to be found ; not a falfe Friendfhip, that makes us embrace Glory, Krowledge, Ricbes, and the like, with a principal and immoderate Affection, as Members of our Being, nor an indifcreet and effeminate Friendfhip, wherein it happens as with Ivy, that decays and ruins the Walls it embraces : but a found and regular Friendfhip, equally ufeful and pleafant. Who knows the Duties of this Friendfhip, and practifes them, is truly of the Cabinat Council of the Mufes, and has attained to the Heighth of human Wifdom, and our Happinefs. Such a one exaetly knowing what he owes to himfelf, will in his part find that he ought to apply the Cuftom of the World, and of other Men to himfelf, and to do this, to contribute the Duties and Offices appertaining to him to the publick Society. Who does not in fome fort live to others, does not live much to himfelf. 2wi fibi amines eff, fcito bunc amicum omnibus efie *; He webo is his own Friend, is a Friend to every Body elfa. The principal Charge we have, is, to every one his own Conduc: And 'tis for this only that we here live. As he who fhould forget to live a virtuous and holy Life, and fhould think he acquitted himfelf of his Daty, in inftructing and training others up to it, would be a Fool; even fo, who abandons his own particular healthful and pleafant Living to ferve others, takes, in my Opinion, a wrong and an unnatural Courfe. I would not that Men fhouid refufe, in the Employments they take upon them, their Attention, Pains, their beft Eloquence, and their Sweat and Blood, in time of need;

[^1]
Of managing the Will.

non ille pro charis amicis Aut patriâ timidus perire $f$.

[^2]
Of managing the Wills

He well knows how hard Want to bear, And fears a Crime more than his End; And for his Country or his Friend, To ftake his Life he does not fear *.
But 'tis only borrowed, and accidentally; his Mind being always in Repofe and in Health; not without Action, but without Vexation, without Paffion. To be fimply doing, cofts him fo little, that he acts even fleeping. But it muft be fet on going with Difcretion; for the Body receives the Offices impofed upon it, juft according to what they are ; the Mind often extends, and makes them heavier at his own Expence, giving them what Meafure it pleafes, Men perform like things with feveral forts of Endeavour, and different Contention of Wit; the one does well eriough without the other. For how many People hazard themfelves every Day in War, without any Concern which way it goes, and thrufts themfelves into the Dangers of Battles, the Lofs of which will not break their next Night's Sleep? And fuch a Man may be at home, out of Danger, which he durft not have looked upon, who is more paffionately concern'd for the Iflue of this War, and whofe Soul is more anxious about Events, than the Soldier who ftakes his Life and Blood in the Quarrel. I could have engaged myfelf in publick Employments, without quitting my own Intereft a Nail's Breadth, and have given myfelf to others, without abandoning myfelf; this Sharpnefs and Violence of Defires, more hinders than it advances the Execution of what we undertake: fills us with Impatience againft flow or contrary Events, and with Heat and Sufpicion againft thofé with whom we have to do. We never carry on that thing well, by which we are prepoffeffed and led.

Malé cuncta minifrat Impetus.

For Heat does ftill Carry on things very ill.

* Sir Richard Fanfhaw.

270 Montaigne's EJfays.

He, who therein employs only his Judgment and Addrefs, proceeds more chearfully: He counterfeits, he gives way, he defers all Things at his eafe, according to the Neceffities of Occafions; he fails in his Attempts without Trouble and Afflictions, ready and entire for a new Enterprize : He always marches with the Bridle in his Hand. In him who is drunk with this violent and tyrannick Intention, we difcover by Neceflity much Imprudence and Injuftice. The Impetuofity of his Defire carries him away. Thefe are rafh Motions, and, if For-

That the Cbaftijement of Offences ought to be performed zwitbout Anger. tune does not very much affift, of very little Fruit. Pbiloopply will, that in the Revenge of Injuries received, we fhould ftrip ourfelves of Choler; not that the Chaftifement fhould be lefs, but, on the contrary, that the Revenge may be the better, and more heavily laid on, which it conceives will be by this Impetuofity hindered. For Anger does not only trouble, but of itfelf does alfo weary the Arms of thofe who chaftife. This Fire benumbs and waftes their Force. As in Precipitation, feffinatio tarda eff , hafle trips up it's own Heels, fetters and fops itfelf, iffa fe velocitas implicat $t$. For Example: According to what I commonly fee, Avarice has no greater Impediment than itfelf. The more bent and vigorous it is, the lefs it rakes together, and commonly fooner grows rich, when difguifed in a Vizor of Liberality. A very honeft Gentleman, and a particular Friend of mine, had like to have crack'd his Brains by a too paffionate Attention and Affection to the Affairs of a certain Prince, his Mafter; which Mafter has thus fet himfelf out to me; that he forefees the Weight of Accidents, as well as another; but that in thofe, for which there is no Remedy, he prefently refolves upon Suffering: In others, having taken all the neceffary Precaution, which by the Vivacity of his Underitanding he can prefently do, he quietly expects what may follow. And, in truth, I have accordingly feen him maintain a great Indifferency and Liberty of Actions, and Serenity of Countenance, in very great and nice Affairs. I find him much greater, and
Of managing the Will.
of greater Capacity in adverfe than profperous Fortune. His Lofes are to him more glorious than his Victories, and his Mourning than his Triumphb $^{\text {. Do but confider, }}$ that even in vain and frivolous Actions, as at Chefs, Tenuis, and the like, this eager and ardent engaging with an impetuous Defire, immediately throws the Mind and Members into Indifcretion and Diforder. A Man aftonifhes and hinders himfelf. He that carries himfelf the mot moderately both towards Gain and Lofs, has always his Wits about him. The lefs peevifh and paffionate he is at Play, he plays much more advantageoufly and furely. As to the reft, we hinder the Mind's Seizure and Hold, in giving it fo many things to feize upon. Some things we are only to offer to it, to tie it to others, and with others to incorporate it. It can feel and difcern all things, but ought to feed on nothing but felf; and fhould be initructed in what properly concerns itfelf, that is properly of it's own Nature and Subfance: The Larus of Nature teach us what we are juftly to have. After the Sages have told us, that no one is indigent according to Nature; and that every one is fo according to Opinion, they very fubtilly diftinguifh betwixt the Defires that proceed from her, and thofe that proceed from the Diforder of our own Fancy. Thofe of which we can fee the Bnd, are hers; thofe that fly before us, and of which we an fee no End, are our own. The Want of Goods is eafily repair'd; but the Poverty of the Soul is irreparable.

Nam ff, quod fatis ef homini, id fatis efle potefet, Hoc fat erat: nunc, quum boc non ef, qui credimus porro Divitias ullas animum mî explere potefe*?

If what's for Man enough, enough could be, It were enough ; but being that we fee
Will not ferve turn, how I can e'er believe That any Wealth my Mind Content can give ?

Socrates feeing great Quantity of Riches, Jewels, and Furniture of great Value, carried in Pomp through the City,

[^3]
272 Montaigne's.EJays.

How many things, faid he, do I not defre! Metrodorus liv'd on the Weight of twelve Ounces a Day, Epicarrus upon lefs: Metrocles flept in Winter abroad amongf Sheep, in Summer in the Cloifters of Churches. Suff ficit ad id natura quod pofcil*. Cleanthes liv'd by Labour of his own Hands, and boafted, That Cleanthes, if be would, could yet maintain another Cleanthes. If that which Nature exactly and originally requires of us for the Confervation of our Being, be too little, (as in truth what it is, and how very cheap Life may be maintain', cannot be better made out, than by this Confideration, that it is fo little, that by it's Littlenefs it efcapes the Gripe and Shock of Fortune) let us difpenfe ourfelves a little more, let us yet call every one of our Habits and Conditions. Nature; let us tax and treat ourfelves by this meafure, let us ftretch our Appurtenances and Accompps fo far; for fo far I fancy we have fome Excufe. Cufform is a fecond Nature, and no lefs powerful. What is wanting to my Cufom, I reckon is wanting to me; and I fhould be almoft as well content that they took away my Life, as cut me fhort in the way wherein I have folong liv'd. I am no more in a Condition of any great Change, nor to put myfelf into a new and unwonted Courfe, not tho' never fo much to my Advantage; 'tis paft time for me to become other than what I am. And as I fhould complain of any great good Adventure that fhould now befal me, that it came not in time to be enjoy'd;

2uo mibi fortunce, fi non conceditur uti $\dagger$ ?
Might I have the World's Wealth, I fhould refufe it; What Good will't do me, if I may not ufe it.
fo fhould I complain of any inward Acqueft. It were almof better never, than fo late to become an honet Man ; and well read in living, when a Man has no long. er to live. I, who am ready to make my Exit out of the World, would eafily refign any new Comer, who fhould defire it, all the Pradence I have acquir'd in the World's Commerce. After Meat comes Mufard. I have no need of Goods, of which I can malke no ufe. Of what ufe is Knowledge to him that has loft his Head; 'Tis an Injury and Unkindnefs in Fortune. to render us Prefents, that will only infpire us with a juft Defpite that we had them not in their due Seafon. Guide me no more, I can no longer go. Of fo many Parts as make up a perfect Man, Patience is the beft. Affign the Part of an excellent Treble to a Cborifter that has rotten Langs, and Eloquence to a Hermit exil'd into the Deferts of Arabia. There needs no Art to further a Fall; the End finds itfelf of itfelf; at the Conclution of every Affair my World is at an End, my Form expired; I am totally paft, and am bound to authorife it, and to conform my Pofterity to it. I will here declare, by way of Example, that the late ten Days Diminution of the Pore, have taken me fo low, that I The Abridgment cannot well recover myfelf. I follow of ten Days ofthe Years wherein we kept another kind fered by the Pope. of Account, fo ancient, and fo long a Cuform, challenges and calls me back to it; fo that I am conftrain'd to be a kind of Heretick in that point, impatient of any, though worrective Innovation. My Imagination, in fpite of my Teeth, always purhes me ten Days forward or backward, and is ever murnuring in my Ears. This Rule concerns thofe who are to begin to be. If Health itfelf, as fweet as it is, returns to me by Fits, 'tis rather to give me the Caufe of Regret than Poffeflion of it; I have no Place left to keep it in. Time leaves me, without which nothing can be poffeffed. Oh, what little Account fhould I make of thole great elective Dignitres that I fee in fuch Efteem in the World, that are never confer'd but upon Men who are taking leave of it! Wherein they do not fo much regard how well he will difcharge his Truft, as how fhort his Adminittration will be ; from the very Entry they look at the Exit. To conclude, I am ready to finifh this Man, and not to sebuild another. By long Habitude, this Form is, in me, turn'd into Subfance, and Fortune into Nature In fay therefore, that every one of us feeble Creatures is excutable in thinking that to be his own, which is compriz'd under this Meafure ; but withal, beyond thefe Limits, 'tis nothing but Confufion, 'tis the largeft Extent we can grant to our own Clain. The $\mathrm{S}_{2}$ more

[^4]Of managing the Will.

274

Montaigne's Efays.

more Bufinefs we create ourfelves, and the more we amplify our Poffeflion, fo much more do we expofe ourfelves to the Blows and Adverfities of Fortune. The Career of our Defires ought to be circumfcribed, and reftrain'd to a fhort Limit of near and contiguous Conveniencies; and ought moreover to perform their Courfe, not in a Right Line, that ends elfewhere, but in a Circle, of which the two Points by a fhort Wheel meet and terminate in ourfelves. Actions that are carried on without this Reflection, a near and effential Reflection I mean; fuch as thofe of ambitious and avaricious Men, and many more who run point blank, and whofe Career always carries them before themfelves, fuch Actions, I fay, are erroneous and fickly: Moft of our Bufinefs is Farce. Mundus univerfus exercet biftrionem*. We muft play our Part well, but withal as the Part of a borrow'd Perfon; we muft not make real Effence of a $M a / k$ and outward Appearance, nor of a ftrange Perfon our own; we cannot diftinguifh the Skin from the Shirt; 'tis enough to meal the Face without mealing the Breaft. I fee fome, who transform and tranfubftantiate themfelves into as many new Sbapes and new Beings as they undertalke Employments, and who prelate themfelves even to the Heart and Liver, and carry their Eftate along with them, even to the Clofe-ftool: I cannot make them diflinguifh the Salutations that are made to them, from thole made to their Commifron, their Train, or their Mule. Tanquam Se Fortunce permittunt, etiam ut naturam dedif. cant + ; They fo much give themjelves up to Fortune, as even to forget tbeir Nature. They fwell and puff up their Souls, and their natural way of feeaking according to the Heighth of their Place. The Mayors of Bourdeanx and Montaigne have ever been two, by very manifeft Separation. To be an Advocate or a Treafurer, a Man muft not be ignorant of the Knavery of fuch Callings; and yet ought not to refufe to take the Calling upon him: :Tis the Cuftom of his Country, and there is Money to be got by it; a Man muft live by the World, and make his beft of it, fuch as it is. But the Judgment of an Emperor ought to be above his Empire, and the

[^5]
of manating the Will:

feeing and confidering of it, as of a Foreign Accident; and he ought to know how to enjoy himfelf apart from it, and to communicate himfelf as Fames and Peter to himfelf at leaft. I cannot engage my felf fo deep and fo entire ; when my Will gives me to deny any one, 'tis not: with fo violent an Obligation that my Judgment is infeted with it. In the prefent Broils of this Kingdom, my Intereft has not made me forget myfelf, nor the laudable Qualities of fome of our Adverfaries, nor thofe that are reproachable in thofe of our Party. They adore all of their own fide; for my part I do not fo much as excufe moft things in thofe of mine: A good Speech has never the worfe Grace for being made againft me. The Knot of the Controverfy excepted, I have always kept myfelf in Equanimity and pure Indifference. Neque extra neceffitates belli, pracipuum odium gero; And bave noexprefs Hatred bejond the Neceffity of War. For which I am pleafed with myfelf, and the more, becaufe I fee others commonly fail on the contrary fide. Such as extend their Anger and Hatred beyond the Difpute in queftion, as moft Men do, fhew that they fpring from fome other Occafion and particular Caufe; like one, who being cured of an Uleer, has yet a remaining Fever, by which it appears that the Uleer had another more conceald Beginning; which is, that they are not concern'd in the common Caufe, becaufe it is wounding to the State and commoh Intereff ; but are only nettled by Reafon of their private and particular Concern. This is the true Reafon why they are fo particularly animated, and to a Degree fo beyond Juftice and publick Reafon. Non tami omnia univerf, quam ea, quac ad quemque pertinent, finguli carpebant; Every one wwas not fo much angry againft things in generat, as againf thofe that particularly concerned thenjelves. I would have Matters go well on our fide; but if they do not, I fhall not run mad; Iam heartily for the right Party; but I do not affect to be taken notice of for an efpecial Enemy to others, and beyond the general Quarrel. I am a mortal Enemy to this vicious Form of Cenfure: He is of the League, becaufe be admires the Duke of Guife. He is afonijbed at the King of Navarre's Valour and Diligence, and therefore br is a Huguenot. He finds fuch and fuch Faulls in the.

King's Manner's and Conduct, and therefore be is feditions in bis Heart. And would not grant to a Magiftrate himfelf, that he did well in condemning a Book, becaufe it had placed a Heretick amongft the belt Poets of the Time. Shall we not dare to fay of a Thief, that he has a handfom Leg? If a Woman be a Strumpet, muift it needs follow that fhe has a ftinking Breath ? Did they in the wifert Ages revoke the proud Title of Capitolinus, they had before confer'd upon Marcus Manlius, as being the Confervator of Religion and the publick Liberty; did they therefore damn the Memory of his Liberality, his Feats of Arms and military Recompence granted to his Virtue, becaufe he afterwards afpired to the Sovereignty, to the prejudice of the Laves of his Country? If they take a Hatred againft an Advocate, he will not be allowed the next Day to be eloquent. I have elfewhere fpoke of the Zeal that puff'd on worthy Men to the like Faults. For my part, I can fay fuch an one does this thing ill, and another thing virtuoufly and well. They will likewife, that in the Prognoficks, or finither Events of Affairs, every one fhould in his Party be blind, or a Blockhead, and that our Perfuafion and Judgment fhould be fubfervient, not to Truth $^{2}$ but to the Project of our Defires. I fhould rather incline towards the other Extreme, fo much I fear being fuborn'd by my Defire : To which may be added, Facility of $P_{e 0-}$ that I am a little tenderly diftrufful of ple in fuffering tbemjelves to be impofed upon. things that I wifh. I have in my time feen Wonders in the indifcreet and prodigious Facility of People, in fuffering their Hopes and Belief to be led and governed which way has beft pleas'd and ferv'd their Leaderrs; above an hundred Miftakes one upon another; and above Dreams and Phantafms. I no more wonder at thofe who have been blinded, and feduced by the Fooleries of Apollonius and Mabomet. Their Senfe and Underftanding is abrolutely taken away by their Paffion; their Difcretion has no more any other Choice than that which fmiles upon them, and relieves their Caufe. I had principally obferv'd this in the Beginning of our inteltine Diffempers; this other, which is fpruig fince, in jmitating, has furpaffed it; by which $I$ am fatisfied that it is a Quality infeparable from popular Errors. After the firft that rolls, Opinions drive on one another like Waves with the Wind A Man is not a Member of the Body, if it be in his Power to forfake it, and if he do not roll the common way; but doubtlefs they wrong the juft fide, when they go about to affift it with Fraud. I have ever been againft that Practice. They are only fit to work upon weak Heads; for the Sound, there are furer and more honeft Ways to keep up their Courages, and to excufe adverfe Accidents. Heaven never faw a greater Animofity than that betwixt Crefar and Pompey, nor ever will ; and yet I obferve, methinks, in thofe gallant Men a great Moderation towards one another. It was a Jealouly of Honour and Command, which did not tranfoort them to a furious and indifcreet Hatred, and that was, though Hatred, without Malignity and Detrac tion. In their brifkeft and hotteft Encounters and Exploits upon one another, I difcover fome Remains of Refpect and Good will; and therefore am of Opinion, that, had it been poffible, each of them would rather have done his Bufinefs without the Ruin of the other, than with it. Tuke notice how much otherwife Matters went with Marius and Sylla. We muft not precipitate ourfelves fo headlong after our Affections and Intereft. As when' I was young, I oppos'd the Progrefs of Love, which I perceiv'd to advance too faft upon me, and had a care let it fhould at laft become fo pleafing, as to force, captivate, and wholly reduce me to it's Mercy: So I do the fame upon all other Occafions where my Will is running on with too warm an Appetite. I lean oppofite to the Side it inclines to, as I find it going to plunge and make itfelf drunk with it's own Wine; I evade nourifhing it's Pleafure fo far, that I cannot recover it without infinite Lofs. Souls that, through their own Stupidity, only difcern things by halves, have this Happinels, that they fmart leaft with hurtful things. 'Tis a fpiritual Leprofy that has fome fhew of Health, and fuch a Health as Philofophy does not altogether contemn ; but yet we have no reafon to call it Wifdom, as we often do. And after this manner a Man mock'd Diogenes, who, in the Depth of Winter, and ftark naked, went hugging an Image of Show for a trial of his Patience; meeting him in this Equipage, Art thou not very cold, faid he? Not at all,

278
Diogenes patient of Cold. Montaigne's Effays. replied Diogenes. Why tben, faid the other, What great and exemplary thing canf thou think thou dof in embracing the Snow? A Man, to take a true meafure of Conffangs, muft neceffiarily know what Suffering is ; but Souls that are to meet with adverfe Events, and the Injuries of Fortune in their Depth and Sharpnefs, that are to weigh and tafte them according to their natural Weight and Sharpnefs, let fuch fhew their Skill in avoiding the Caufses, A rich Vefel and diverting the Blow. What did purpooly broken by King Cotys, and why. King Cotys do? He paid liberally for the rich and beautiful Veffel that had been prefented him ; but being it was exceeding brittle, he im mediately broke it betimes to prevent fo eafy a matter of Difpleafure againt his Servants. In like manner, I have willingly avoided all Confufion in my Affairs, and never coveted to have my Eftate contiguous to thofe of my Relations, and fuch with whom I coveted a frict Friendfhip; whence Matters of Unkindnefs and Falling-out do oft proceed. I have formerly loved Cards and Dice, but have long fince left them off, only for this Reafon, that tho' I carry my Loffes as handfomly as another, I was not well fatisfied and quiet within. Let a Man of Ho nour, who ought to be fenfible of the $L_{i e}$, and who is not to take a fcurvy Excufe for Satisfaction, avoid Oc. cafions of Difpute. I fhun melancholick and four-natur'd Men, as I would do the Plague. And in Matters I cannot talk of without Emotion and Concern, I never meddle if not compell'd by my Duty, Melius non ins cipient, quam defnent; A Man bad better never to have begun, than to deffe. The fureft way therefore, is, to prepare a Man's felf beforehand for Occafions. I know very well, that fome wife Men have taken another way, and have not feared to grapple and engage to the utmoft upon feveral Subjects. Such are confident of their own Strength, under which they protect themfelves in all ill Succeffes, making their Patience wrefle and contend with Difafter:

[^6]
of Manasing the with.

> velut rupes vafum que prodit in equor, Obvia ventorum furiis, expoftaque ponto, Vim cunctain atque minas perfert caelique marifque, Ipfa immota manens *.

He as a Rock amongft vaft Billows ftood, Scorning loud Winds and raging of the Flood, And fix'd remaining all the Force defies, Mufter'd from threatning Seas anid thund'ring Skies $\dagger$.

Let us never attempt thefe Examples, we fhall never come up to them. They fet themfelves refolutely, and without Trouble, to behold the Ruin of their Country, to which all the Good they can contrive or perform is due. This is too much, and too rude for our common Souls to undergo. Cato indeed gave up the nobleft Life that ever was upon this Account ; but it is for us meaner firited Men to fly from the Storm as far as we can; we ought to make Provifion of Refentment, not of Patience, and evade the Blows we cannot put by. Zeno feeing Cbremonides, a young Man whom he loved, draw near to fit down by him, fuddenly ftarted up, and Cleantbes demanding of him the Reafon why he did fo, I bear, faid he, that Pbyficians efpecially ordered Repofe, and forbid Emotion in all Tumours. Socrates does not fay, do not furrender to the Charms of Beauty, fland your Ground, and do your utmoft to oppofe it. Fly it, fays he, fhum the Sight and Encounter of it, as of a powerful Poifon that darts and wounds at a Diftance. And his good Difciple, either feigning or reciting, but in my Opinion rather reciting than feigning the rare Perfections of that great Cyrus, makes him diftruffful of his own Strength, to refift the Charms of the divine Beauty of that illuftrious Pantbea, his Captive, in committing the vifiting and keeping of her to another, who could not have fo much Liberty as himfelf. And the Holy Ghoft in like manner, Ne nos inducas in tentationem. We do not pray that our Reafon may not be combated and overcome by Concupifence, but that it fhould not be fo much as tried; that we fhould not be brought into a State wherein we were fo much as to fuffer the Approaches, Solicitations and Temptations of $\operatorname{Sin}$; and we beg of Almighty God to keep our Conicienses quiet, fully, and perfectly delivered from all Commerce of Evil. Such as fay that they have Reafon for their revenging Paffion or any other Sort of troublefom Agitation of Mind, do oft fay true, as Things now are, but not as they were. They fpeak to us when the Caufes of their Error are by themfelves nourifhed and advanced. But look backward, recal thefe Caufes to their Beginning, and there you will put them to a non plus ; will they have their Fault lefs for being of longer Continuance, and that of an unjuft Beginning, the Sequel can be jutt? Whoever fhall defire the Good of his Country, as I do, without fretting and pining himfelf, will be tronbled, but will not fwoon to fee him threatning either its own Ruin, or a lefs ruinous Continuance, Poor Veffel, that the Waves, the Winds, and the Pilot, tofs and fteer to fo contrary Defigns!

[^7]
280 Montaigne's Efays.

> - in tam diverfa Magifer, Ventus, $\varepsilon^{\circ}$ unda trabunt *.

He who does not gape after the Favour of Princes, as after a Thing he cannot live without, does not much concern himfelf at the Coldnefs of their Reception and Countenance, nor at the Inconflancy of their Wills. He who does not brood over his Children or his Honours with a flavifh Propenfion, ceafes not to live commodioufly enough after their Lofs. Who does Good principally for his own Satisfaction, will not be much troubled to fee Men judge of his Actions contrary to his Merit. A quarter of an Ounce of Patience will provide fufficiently againft fuch Inconveniencies. I find Eafe in this Receipt, redeeming my felf in the Beginning as cheap as I can; and find that by that Means I have efcaped much Trouble and many Difficulties. With very little Struggle I fop the firf Sally of my Emotions and quit the Subject that begins to be troublefom be, fore it tranfports me. He who fops not the Start, will never be able to ftop the Career. Who cannot keep them out, will never get them out when they are once, got in ; and who cannot crufh them at the Beginning, will never do it after, nor ever keep himfelf from falling, if he cannot recover himielf when firft he begins to totter. Etenim ipfife impellint ubi femel a ratione dijcelium of: : ipfaque fibi imbecillitas indulget, in alumgue provebitur imprudenter: necreperit locum conffiendi ${ }^{*}$. For they throwe themfelves Headlong, when once they lofe :their Reafon; and Frailty does fo far indulge itfelf, that it is unawares carried out into the Deep, and can find no Port wherein to come to an Anchor. I am betimes fenfible of the little Breezes that begis to fing and whiftle in the Shrowds, the Fore-runners of a Storm.

* Bucbanan.
> $\longrightarrow$ ceu flamina prima
> Cum deprenfa fremunt flivis, Ecaca volutant Murmura, venturos naulis prodentia ventos $t$.

—As when Winds rife, And ftop'd by Woods, a fudden Murmur fend, Which doth a Storm to Mariners portend $\ddagger$.

How often have I done myfelf a manifeft Injuftice, to avoid the Hazard of having yet a worfe done me by the Judges, after an Age of Vexations, dirty and vile Practices, more Enemies to my Nature than Fire, or the Rack ? Convenio à litibus quantum licet; E' nefcio an paulo plus etiam quàm licet abhorrentem effe. Ef enim non modo liberale, paulutum nonnunquam de fuo jure dece. dere, fed interdum etiam fructuofum. A Man Joould be an Enemy to all Contention as much as be larufully may, and $I$ know nat wbetber or not fomething more: For 'tis not only liberal, but fometimes alfo advantageous too, a little to recede from one's Right. Were we wife, we ought to rejoice and boaft, as I one Day heard a young Gentleman of a good Family very innocently do, that his Mother had loft her Trial, as if it had been a Cough, a Fever, or fomething very troublefom to keep : Even the Favours' that Fortune might have given me thro' Relation, or Acquaintance with thofe who have fovereign Authority in thofe Affairs, I have very confcientioufly waved; and very carefully avoided employing them to the Prejudice of others, and of advancing my Pretenfions above their true Right. In fine, I have fo much prevailed by my Endeavours, in a happy Hour I may fpeak it, that I am to this Day a Virgin from all Suits in Law; tho' I have had very fair Offers made me, and with very juft Title, would I have hearkened to them : And a Virgin from Quarrels too. I have almoft pat over a long Life without any Offence of Moment, either active or paffive, or without ever hearing a worfe Word than my own Name: A rare Favour of Heaven, Our greateft Agitations have ridiculous Motives and Caufes. What Ruin did our laft Duke of Burgundy run into about a Cart-load of Sheep-fkins! And was not the Graving of a Seal the firt and principal Caufe of the greatelt Commotion that this Machine of the World did ever undergo? For Pompey and Cafar are but the Offfets and Continuation of two others. And I have in my Time feen the wifeft Heads in this Kingdom affembled with great Ceremony, and at the publick Expence, about Treaties and Agreements, of which the true Decifion did in the mean time abfolutely depend upon the Ladies Cabinet Council, and the Inclination of fome foolifh Women. The Poets very well undertood this, when they put all Greece and Afaa to Fire and Sword for an Apple. Enquire why that Man hazards his Life and Honour upon the Fortune of his Rapier and Dagger; let him acquaint you with the Occafion of the Quarrel, he cannot do it without Blufhing, 'tis fo idle and frivolous: A little thing will ingage you in't, but being once embarked, all Cords draw ; greater Provifions are then required, more hard, and more important. How much eafier is it not to enter in, than it is to get out? Now, we fhould proceed contrary to the Reed, which at it's firlt Spring, produces a long and frait fhoot, but afterwards, as if tired and out of Breath, it runs into thick and frequent Joints and Knots, as fo many Paufes ; which demonftrates that it has no more it's firt Vigour and Conftancy. Twere better to begin fair and coldly, and to keep a Man's Breath and vigorous Attacks for the Height and Strefs of the Bufinefs. We guide and govern Affairs in their Beginnings, and have them then in our own Power; but afterwards when they are once at work, 'tis they that guide and govern us, and we are to follow them. Yet do I not pretend by this to fay, that this Counfel has difcharged me of all Difficulty, and that I have not often had enough to do to curb and reffrain my Paffions. They are not always to be governed according to the Meafure of Occafions, and often have their Entries very fharp and violent. So it is, that thence good Eruit and Profit may be reaped; except for thofe, who in well-doing are not fatisfied with any Benefit, if Reputation be wanting: For in truth, fuch an Effect is not valued but by every one to himfelf. You are better contented, but not more efteemed; feeing you reformed yourfelf before you came into Play, and that any Vice was difcovered in you: Yet not in this only, but in all other Duties of Life, alfo the Way of thofe who aim at Honour, is very difierent from that they proceed by ; who propofe to themfelves Order and Reafon. I find fome who rafhly and furioully rufh into the Lifs, and cool in the Courfe. As Plutarch fays, That as thofe who through Bafffulnefs, being foft and facile, do grant whatever is defired of them, are afterwards as frail to break their Word, and to recant ; fo likewife he who enters lightly into a Quarrel, is fubject to go as lightly out. The fame Difficulty that keeps me from entering into it, would, when once hot and engaged in Quarrel, incite me to maintain it with great Obitinacy and $\mathrm{Re}^{-}$ folution. 'Tis the Tyranny of Cuftom, when a Man is once engaged, he muft go through with it or die. Undertake coldy, faid Bias, but purfue with Ardour. For want of Prudence, Men fall into want of Courage, which is more intolerable. Moot Accomodations of the Quarrels of thefe Days of ours, are fhameful and falfe, we only feek to fave Appearances, and in the mean time betray and difavow our true Intentions. We falve the Fact. We know very well how we faid the thing, and in what Senfe we fpoke it, and both all the Company

[^8]
282 Montaigne's Effays.

284

 Montaiciés Efays.Company, and of them our Friends with whom we would appear to have the Advantage, underfand it well enough too. 'Tis at the Expence of our Liberty, and the Honour of our Courage, that we difown our Thoughts, and feek Refuge in Falfities to Friends. We give ourfelves the $L i e$, to excufe the $L_{i e}$ we have given to another. You are to confider, if your Word or Action may admit of another Interpretation; 'tis your own true and fincere Interpretation of, and your real Meaning in what you faid or did, that you are thenceforward to maintain; whatever it;coft you. 0 Men Speak to your Virtue, Honour and Confcience, which are none of them to be difguifed. Let us leave thefe pitifal Ways and Expedients to the Juglers of the Law. The Excufes and Satisfactions that I fee every Day made and given to repair Indifcretion, feem to me more fcandalous than Indifcretion itfelf. It were better to affront your Adverfary a fecond time, than to offend your felf by giving him fo unmanly a Satisfaction. You have braved him in your Heat and Anger, and you go to appeafe him in your cooler and better Senfe; and by that Means lay your felf lower, and at his Feet, whom before you pretended to overtop. I do not find any thing a Gentleman can fay fo rude and vicious in him, as unfaying what he has faid is infamous; when to unfay it is authoritatively extracted from him, forafmuch as Obftinacy is more excufable in a Man of Honour than Pufillanimity can poffibly be. Paffions are as eafy for me to evade, as they are hard for me to moderate. Exinduntur facilius animo, quam temperantur ${ }^{*}$. Who cannot attain unto that noble Stoical Impoffibility, let him fecure himfelf in the Bofom of this popular Stupidity of mine. What thofe great Souls performed by their Virtue, I inure my felf to do by Complexion. The middle Region harbours Storms and Tempefts, the two Extremes of Pbilofopbers and ignorant Men concur in Tranquillity and Happinefs.

Falix qui potuit rerum cognofere caufas, Atque metus omnes, $\mathcal{E}^{\circ}$ inexorabile fatum Subjecit pedibus, Arrepitumque Acberontis avari. Fortunatus, छ' ille, Deos qui novit agreftes, Panaque, Sylvanumque fenem, Nymphafque forores $\dagger$.
Happy is he that hidden Caufes knows, And bold, all Shapes of Danger dare oppofe, Trampled beneath his Feet the cruel Fates, Whom Death nor fwallowing Acheron amates; And he is bleft who knows our Country Gods, Par, old Sylvanus, and the Nymphs Abodes $\ddagger$.

The Births of all Things are weak and tender, and therefore we are to have an Eye to their Beginnings; for as then in their Infancy the Danger is not perceived; fo when it is grown up, the Remedy is no more to be found. I had every Day encountered a Million of Crofles, harder to digett in the Progrefs of my Ambition, than it has been for me to curb the natural Propenfity that inclined me to it.

- - jure perborrui,

Latè conjpicuum tolere verticem \|.

I did well

To flrink 'my Head into my Shell *.
All publick Actions are fubject to various and uncertain Interpretations, for too many Heads judge of them. Some fay of this City Employment of mine (and I am willing to fay a Word or two of it, not that it is worth fo much, but to give an Account of my Manners in fuch Things) that 1 have behaved my felf in it like a Man not eafy to be moved, and with a languifhing Affection; and they have fome Colour for what they fay. I endeavour to keep my Mind and my Thoughts in Repofe. Cum Semper natura, tums etiam atate jam quietus $\wp$. As being always quiet by Na-

[^9]
286 Montaigne's EJays.

zure, fo alfo now by Age. And if they fometimes lafh out on fome rude and fenfible Imprefion, 'tis in truth; without my Advice. Yet from this natural Heavinefs of mine, Men ought not to conclude a total Inability in me; for want of Care and want of Senfe are two very different Things, and much lefs any Ingratitude towards that Corporation, who employed the utmoft Means they had in their Power to oblige me, both before they knew me and after. And they did much more for me in chufing me anew, than in conferring that Honour upon me at firft ; I love them entirely, and wifh them all the Good that can befal fo worthy a Society. And doubtlefs had Occafion offered, there is nothing I would have fpared for their Service ; I did for them as I would have done for myfelf. 'Tis a good, warlike and generous People, but capable of Obedience and Difcipline, and of whom the beft Ufe may be made, if well guided. They fay alfo, that my Adminiftration was paffed over without any great Remark, or any Record of Moment. 'Tis true, they moreover accule my Ceffation in a Time when every Body almoft was convinced of doing too much. I am im* patient to be doing where my Will fpurs me on ; but this Point is an Enemy to Perfeverance. Let whoever will make Ufe of me according to my own Way, im* ploy me in Affairs where Vigour and Liberty are required; where a direct, fhort, and moreover a hazardous Conduct are neceffary, I perhaps may do fomething; but if it muft be long, fubtle, laborious, artificial and intricate, they would do better to call in fomebody elfe. All important Offices are not hard: I came prepared to carry myfelf a little more roughly, had there been great Occafion; for it is in my Power to do fomething more than I do, or than I love to do; I did not to my Knowledge omit any thing that my Duty really required; 'tis true, that I eafily forget thofe Offices that Ambition mixes with Duty, and palliates with Title. Thofe are they, that for the moft Part, fill the Eyes and Ears, and give Men the moft Satiffaction. Not the Thing, but the Appearance contents them. They think Men neep if they hear no Noife.

Of managing the Will.

My Humour is no Friend to Tumult. I could appeafe a Riot without Emotion, and chaftife a Diforder with out Alteration. If I ttand in need of Anger and Inflammation, I borrow it, and put it on; my Manners are heavy, rather faint than fharp. I do not condemn a Migiftrate that fleeps, provided the People under his Charge fleep as well as he: The Larws in that Cafe flep too. For my Part, I commend a gliding, folitary and filent Life. Nequie fubmifam ©f abjectam, neque Foferertem. My Fortune will bave it $f 0$. I am defcended from a Family that has lived without Luftre or Tumult, and Time out of Mind particularly ambitious of Valour and Loyalty. Our People now a days are fo bred up to Buftle and Oftentation, that Good-nature, Modentition, Equity, Conftancy, and fuch quiet and obferre Qualities, are no more thought on or regarded. Rough Bodies make themfelves felt, the fmooth are imprreeptibly handled. Sicknefs is felt, Health little, or not at all, no more than the Oils that foment us, in Comparifon of the Pain for which we are fomented? Tis -acting for a Man's Reputation and particular Profi, not for the publick Good, to refer that to be done in the publick Place, which a Man may as well do in the Council-Chamber, and to Noon-day, what might have been done the Night before ; and to be jealous to do that himfelf which his Collegue can do as well as he: So fome Cbirurgeons of Greece ured to make their Operations upon Scafolds in the Sight of the People to draw more Practice and Profit. They think that good Orders cannot be undertood bat by the Sound of Trumpet. Ambition is not a Vice of little People, and of fo mean Abilities as ours. One faid to Alexaider, your Fatber will leave you a great Dominion, eafy and pacifick; this Youth was emulous of his Father's. Victories, and the Juftice of his Government; and would not tiave enjoyed the Empire of the World in Eafe and Peace. Alcibiades, in Plato, had rather die young, beautiful, rich, noble and learned, and all this with Excallence, than to continue in the State of fuch a Condition. This Difeafe is perhaps excurable in fo itrong and fo full a Soul. When thefe wretched and dwarfifi Souls gull and deceive themfelves, and think to fread their Val. III.

Fame, for having given right Judgment in an Affair, or continued the Difcipline of keeping the Guard of a Gate of their City, the more they think to exalt their Heads, the more they fhew their Tails. This little Well-doing has neither Body nor Life; it vanifhes in the firlt Mouth, and goes no farther than from one street to another. Talk of it in God's Name to your Son, or your Servant; like that old Fellow, who having no other Auditor of his Prayers, nor Approver of his $V_{2}$ lour, boafted to his Chambermaid, crying out, O Perref, what a brave Man haft thou to thy Mafter! At the worft Hand, talk of it to yourfelf; like a Counfellor of my Acquaintance, who having difgorged a whole Cart-load of Paragrapbs, with great Heat, and as great Folly, coming out of the Council-Cbamber to pifs, was heard very confcientioufly to mutter betwixt his Teeth, Non nobis, Domine, non nobis, fed nomini tuo da gloriam, Who can get it of nobody elfe, let him pay himfelf out of his own Purfe. Fame is not proftituted at fo cheap a Rate. Rare and exemplary Action, to which it is due, would not endure the Company of this prodigious Crowd of little Performances. Marble may exalt your Titles as much as you pleafe, for having repaired a Rod of a ruinous Wall, or cleanfed a publick Aque. duEf, but not Men of Senfe. Renown does not follow all good Deeds, if Novelty and Difficulty be not conjoined. Nay, fo much as meer Eftimation, according to the Stoicks, is not due to every Action that proceeds from Virtue ; neither will they allow him bare Thanks, who out of Temperance forbears to meddle with any old blear-ey'd Hagg. Such as have known the admirable Qualities of Scipio Africanus, deny him the Glory that Penetius attributes to him, of being abflinent from Gifts, as a Glory not fo much his, as that of the Age he lived in. We have Pleafures fuitable to our Fortunes, let us not ufurp thofe of Grandeur. Our own are more natural, and by fo much more folid and fure, as they are more low. If not for that of Confcience, yet at leaft for Ambition Sake, let us reject Ambition, let us difdain that Thirt of Honour and Renown, fo low and mendicant, that it makes us beg it of all Sorts of People: Que eft ifta laus que poffit è macello peti ? What $\begin{gathered}\text { Praile }\end{gathered}$

Of managing the Will.

Praije is that wobich is to be got in the Market? by abjeet Means,' and at what cheap Rate foever. 'Tis Dirhonour to be fo honoured. Let us learn to be no more greedy of Honour, than we are capable of it. To be puffed up with every Action that is innccent, or of Ufe, is only for fuch with whom fuch things are extraordinary and rare ; they will value it as it cofts them. How much more a good Effect makes a Noife, fo much I abaie of the Goodnefs of it ; and enter into Sufpicion that it was more performed for Noife, than upon the Account of Goodnefs: Being expofed upon the Stall, 'tis half fold. Thofe Actions have much more Grace and Luftre, that flip from the Hand of him that does them negligently, and without Noife : And that fome honet Man after chufes out, and raifes from the Shade, to produce it to the Light, upon it's own Account. Mibi quiden laudabiliora videntur omnia, que five venditafinne E' fine populo tefe fuunt. All Things truly feem mre 'laudable to me, that are perforned witbout Ofentation, and without the Tefimony of the People. Says the proudeft Man in the World, I had no Care but to conferve, and to continue, which are filent and infenfible Effects. Innovation is of great Luftre, but'tis interdited in this Time, when we are preffed upon, and have nothing to defend ourfelves from but Novelties. To forbear doing, is oft as generous as to do, but 'tis Lefs in the Light; and the little Good I have in me is of this Kind. In fine, Occafions in this Employment of mine, have been confederate with my Humour, and I thank them for it. Is there any one who defires to be fick that he may fee his Pbyycian's Practice? And would not that $P$ byjfician deferve to be whipped, who flould wifh the Plague amongft us, that he might put his Art in Practice? I have never been of that wicked Humour, tho' common enough, to defire that the Trouble and Diforders of this City fhould elevate and honour my Government; I have ever willingly contributed all I could to their Tranquillity and Eafe. He who will not thank me for the Order, fweet and filent Calm that has accompanied my Adminiftration ; cannot however deprive me of the Share that belongs to me by the Title of my good Fortune. And I am of fuch a

Compq-

Compofition, that I would as willingly be bappy as wife; and had rather owe my Succeffes purely to the Favour of Almighty God, than to any Induftry or Operation of my own. I had fufficiently publifhed to the - World my Unfitnefs for fuch publick Cffices; but I have fomething in me yet worfe than Incapacity; which is, that I am not much difpleafed at it, and that I do not much go about to cure it, confidering the Courfe of Life that I have propofed to myfelf. Neither have I fatisfied myfelf in this Employment, but I have very near arrived at what I expected from my own Performance, and have yet much furpaffed what I promifed them with whom I had to do: For I am apt to pro. mife fomething lefs than what I am able to do, and than what I am able to make good. I affure myifff that I have left no Impreffions of Offence or Hatred be. hind me, and to leave a Regret or Defire of me amongt them. I at leaft know very well that I did never much affect it.

méne buic confidere monfiro,

 Méne falis placidi vultum, fuctufque quietos Ignorare*?Wouldft thou I fhould a quiet Sea believe, To this inconftant Monfter Credit give + ?

C H A P. XI.

Of Cripples.

The rear cut ten Days 乃borter.

9
I S now two or three Years ago that they made the Years ten Days fhorter in France. How many Changes may we expect fhould follow this Reformation! This was properly removing Heaven and Earth at once;

[^10]
[^0]:    * Sexeca, Epif. 22

[^1]:    * Hor. lib. 2. Ode 2. + Eneid. lib. 10.

[^2]:    *Seu. Epif. $48 . \quad$ + Hor. lib. 4. Ode 9 .

[^3]:    Yor. III.
    How

[^4]:    * Sen. Epif. 90. + Hor. lib. I. Epif. 5. have

[^5]:    * Petronius Arbiter. + 2uinit. Cur. lib. 3. feeing

[^6]:    * Senec. Ep. g2.

[^7]:    * Virg. Aneid. b. 10.

    3
    $\dagger$ Mr, Ogilby.
    tried;

[^8]:    * Cicerer Thu/c. . ${ }^{2}$. ... + Aneid. L. 10.

[^9]:    + Virgil. Georg. l. 2. $\ddagger$ M. Ogilby.
    \|Horace l. 3. Ode 17. * Sir Rich. Fanßhaw. § Cicero.
    ture,

[^10]:    dou *Virgil Eneid. $1.5 . \quad+M r$. Ogilby.

