TRAGEDY.

ACT the FIRST.

SCENE I.

A Platform before the Castle.

FLORIAN.

WHAT awful filence! How these antique towers
And vacant courts chill the suspended soul,
Till expectation wears the cast of sear;
And sear, half-ready to become devotion,
Mumbles a kind of mental orison,
It knows not wherefore. What a kind of being
Is circumstance!
I am a soldier; and were yonder battlements
Garnish'd with combatants, and cannon-mounted,
My daring breast would bound with exultation,
And glorious hopes enliven this drear scene.
Now dare not I scarce tread to my own hearing,
Lest echo borrow superstition's tongue,
And seem to answer me, like one departed.

I met

I met a peafant, and enquir'd my way: The earle, not rude of speech, but like the tenant Of fome night-haunted ruin, bore an aspect Of horror, worn to habitude. He bade God blefs me; and pais'd on. I urg'd him farther: Good mafter, cried he, go not to the caftle; There forrow ever dwells and moping mifery. I press'd him yet-None there, said he, are welcome, But now and then a mass-priest, and the poor; To whom the pious Countefs deals her alms, On covenant, that each revolving night They beg of heav'n the health of her fon's foul And of her own: but often as returns The twentieth of September, they are bound Fast from the midnight watch to pray till morn .-More would he not disclose, or knew not more. -What precious mummery! Her fon in exile, She wastes on monks and beggars his inheritance, For his foul's health! I never knew a woman But lov'd our bodies or our fouls too well. Each master whim maintains its hour of empire; And obstinately faithful to its dictates, With equal ardour, equal importunity, They teafe us to be damn'd or to be fav'd. I hate to love or pray too long.

SCENE II.

PORTER of the Castle, FLORIAN.

PORTER.

Methought

I heard a stranger's voice-What lack you, fir?

FLORIAN.

Good fellow, who inhabits here?

PORTER.

PORTER.

FLORIAN.

Belike this caftle is not thine.

PORTER.

Belike fo:

But be it whose it may, this is no haunt For revellers and gallants—Pass your way.

FLORIAN.

Thou churl! Is this your Gallic hospitality? Thy lady, on my life, would not thus rudely Chide from her presence a bewilder'd knight.

PORTER.

Thou know'ft my lady then?—Thou know'ft her not. Canst thou in hair-cloths vex those dainty limbs? Canst thou, on reeking pavements and cold marble, In meditation pass the livelong night? Canst mortify that sless, my rosy minion, And bid thy rebel appetite refrain From goblets soaming wine, and costly viands? These are the deeds, my youngster, must draw down My lady's ever-heav'n-directed eye.

FLORIAN.

In footh, good friend, my knighthood is not school'd
In voluntary rigours—I can fast,
March supperless, and make cold earth my pillow,
When my companions know no choicer fare;
But seldom rooft in churches, or reject
The ready banquet, or a willing fair one.

Vol. I.

G

PORTER.

PORTER.

Angels defend us! what a reprobate!

You mould'ring porch for fixteen years and more
Has not been fruck with fuch unhallow'd founds.

Hence to thy lewd companions!

FLORIAN.

Father greybeard,

I cry you mercy; nor was't my intention.
To wound your reverence's faint-like organs.
But come, thou haft known other days—canft tell
Of banquetings and dancings—'Twas not always thus.

PORTER.

No, no—time was—my lord, the count of Narbonne,
A profp'rous gentleman, were he alive,
We should not know these moping melancholies.
Heav'n rest his foul! I marvel not my lady
Cherishes his remembrance, for he was
Comely to sight, and wondrous goodly built.
They say his son count Edmund's mainly like him.
Would these old arms, that serv'd his grandfather,
Could once enfold him! I should part in peace.

FLORIAN.

What, if I bring thee tidings of count Edmund?

PORTER.

Mercy befall me!—now my dream is out.

Last night the raven croak'd, and from the bars

Of our lodge-fire slitted a messenger—

I knew no good would follow—Bring you ill tidings,

Sir gentleman?

FLORIAN.

(This is a folemn fool,
Or folemn knave)—Shouldst thou indeed rejoice

[Afide.

To

To fee count Edmund? Would thy noble mistress Spring with a mother's joy to class her son?

PORTER.

Oh! no, no, no.—He must not here—alas!
He must not here set foot—But tell me, stranger,
I prithee say, does my old master's heir
Still breathe this vital air? Is he in France?
Is he within some ten, or twenty leagues,
Or sifty? I am hearty yet, have all my limbs,
And I would make a weary pilgrimage
To kis his gracious hand, and at his feet
Lay my old bones—for here I ne'er must see him.

[Weeps.

FLORIAN.

Thou good old man, forgive a foldier's mirth.

But fay, why Narbonne's heir from Narbonne's lands

Is banish'd, driven by a ruthless mother?

PORTER.

Ah! fir, 'tis hard indeed-but spare his mother; Such virtue never dwelt in female form. Count Edmund-but he was indeed a stripling, A very lad-it was the trick of youth, And we have all our fins, or we have had; Yet still no pardon-Think'st thou not my lord, My late kind mafter, ere he knew my lady, Wist not what woman was?-I warrant him-But fo-count Edmund being not fixteen, A lufty youth, his father's very image-Oh! he has play'd me many a trick-Good fir, Does my young mafter ever name old Peter? Well!-but I prate-you must forgive my age; I come to th' point-Her name was Beatrice; A roguish eye-she ne'er would look on me, Or we had fav'd full many a woeful day! Mark you me well? G2

FLORIAN.

FLORIAN.

PORTER.

This Beatrice-

But hark! my lady comes—Retire a while Beyond those yews—anon I'll tell you more.

FLORIAN.

May I not greet her?

W. T. T. 6

PORTER.

For my office, no:

'Twere forfeit of my badge to hold a parley With one of near thy years.

[FLORIAN withdraws.

[The Countess in weeds, with a crucifix in her hand, iffues from the castle, accompanied by two maidens, and passes over the stage. When she is gone Florian returns.]

'Tis ever thus.

At break of morn she hies to yonder abbey,
And, prostrate o'er some monumental stone,
Seems more to wait her doom, than ask to shun it.

The day is pass'd in minist'ring to wants
Of health or means; the closing eve beholds
New tears, new pray'rs, or haggard meditation.
But if cold moonshine, deep'ning every frown
Of these impending towers, invite her steps,
She issue forth.—Bestrew me, but I tremble,
When my own keys discharge the drawbridge chains,
And rattle thro' the castle's farmost vaults.

Then have I seen this sad, this sober mourner,
With frantic gesture and disorder'd step—
But hush—who moves up yonder avenue?
It is—no—stay—i'faith! but it is he,
My lady's confessor, with friar Martin—

Quick

Quick hie thee hence-Should that fame meddling monk Observe our conf'rence, there were fine work toward.

FLORIAN.

You will not leave your tale unfinished?

PORTER.

Mass! but I will-A tale will pay no stipend. These fifty winters have I borne this staff, And will not lose my porridge for my prating.

FLORIAN.

Well! but count Edmund-wo't not hear of him?

PORTER.

Aye, blefs his name! at any leifure hour. This ev'ning, ere the shutting of the gates, Loiter about you grange; I'll come to thee. So now, begone-away.

[Exeunt severally.

S C E N E III.

BENEDICT, MARTIN.

BENEDICT.

Ay! fift her, fift her-

As if I had not prob'd her very foul, And wound me round her heart-I tell thee, brother, This woman was not cast in human mould.

Ten such would foil a council, would unbuild Ten fuch would foil a council, would unbuild Our Roman church—In her devotion's real. Our beads, our hymns, our faints, amuse her not: Nay, not confession, not repeating o'er
Her darling sins, has any charms for her. I have mark'd her praying: not one wand'ring thought Seems to steal meaning from her words.-She prays Because she feels, and feels, because a sinner.

MARTIN.

MARTIN.

What is this feeret fin; this untold tale,
That art cannot extract, nor penance cleanse?
Loss of a husband, sixteen years enjoy'd,
And dead as many, could not stamp such forrow.
Nor could she be his death's artiscer,
And now affect to weep it—I have heard,
That chasing, as he homeward rode, a stag,
Chaf'd by the hounds, with sudden onset slew
Th' adventurous count.

BENEDICT.

'Twas fo; and yet, my brother,

My mind has more than once imputed blood
To this inceffant mourner. Beatrice,
The damfel for whose sake she holds in exile
Her only son, has never, since the night
Of his incontinence, been seen or heard of.

MARTIN.

*Tis clear, *tis clear; nor will her prudent tongue Accuse its owner.

BENEDICT.

Judge not rashly, brother.

I oft have shifted my discourse to murder:
She notes it not. Her muscles hold their place,
Nor discompos'd, nor firm'd to steadiness.

No sudden slushing, and no falt'ring lip:
Nor, tho' she pities, lists she to her eyes
Her handkerchief, to palliate her disorder.

There the wound rankles not.—I fix'd on love,
The failure of the fex, and aptest cause
Of each attendant crime—

MARTIN.

We mafter all their craft, Touch but that string-

BENEDICT.

BENEDICT.

Still, brother, do you err. She own'd to me,
That, tho' of nature warm, the passion love
Did ne'er anticipate her choice. The count,
Her husband, so ador'd and so lamented,
Won not her fancy, till the nuptial rites
Had with the sting of pleasure taught her passion.
This, with such modest truth, and that truth heighten'd
By conscious sense, that holds deceit a weakness,
She utter'd, I would pawn my order's credit
On her veracity.

MARTIN.

Then whither turn

To worm her fecret out?

BENEDICT.

I know not that.

She will be filent, but she fcorns a falsehood.

And thus while frank on all things, but her fecret,
I know, I know it not.

MARTIN.
Till the disclose it,

Deny her absolution.

BENEDICT.

She will take none:
Offer'd, fhe fcoffs it; and, withheld, demands not:
Nay, vows fhe will not load her finking foul
With incantations.

MARTIN.

This is herefy; Rank herefy; and holy church should note it.

BENEDICT.

Be patient, brother—Tho' of adamant
Her reason, charity dissolves that rock,
—And surely we have tasted of the stream.

Nay,

Nay, one unguarded moment may disclose
This mystic tale—Then, brother, what a harvest,
When masters of her bosom-guilt!—Age too
May numb her faculties.—Or foon, or late,
A praying woman must become our spoil.

MARTIN.

Her zeal may falter.

BENEDICT.
Not in folitude.

I nurse her in new horrors; form her tenants
To fancy visions, phantoms; and report them.
She mocks their fond credulity—but trust me,
Her memory retains the colouring.
Oft times it paints her dreams; and ebon night
Is no logician. I have known her call
For lights, ere she could combat its impressions.
I too, tho' often scorn'd, relate my dreams,
And wondrous voices heard; that she may think me
At least an honest bigot; nor remember
I tried to practise on her fears, and foil'd
Give o'er my purpose.

MARTIN.
This is masterly.

BENEDICT.

Poor mastery! when I am more in awe
Of my own penitent, than she of me.
My genius is command; art, but a tool
My groveling fortune forces me to use.
Oh! were I seated high as my ambition,
I'd place this naked foot on necks of monarchs,
And make them bow to creeds myself would laugh at *.

* Alluding to Sixtus quintus.

MARTIN.

MARTIN.

By humbler arts our mighty fabric rose. Win pow'r by craft; wear it with oftentation; For confidence is half-fecurity.

Deluded men think boldness, conscious strength;

And grow the slaves of their own want of doubt. Gain to the holy fee this fair domain; A crimfon bonnet may reward your toils, And the rich harvest prove at last your own.

BENEDICT.

Never, while Edmund lives. This steady woman Can ne'er be pious with fo many virtues. Justice is interwoven in her frame; Nor will she wrong the fon she will not see. She loves him not; yet mistress of his fortunes, His ample exhibition fpeaks her bounty. She deftines him whate'er his father's love Gave blindly to her will. Her alms, her charities, Usurp'd from her own wants, she fets apart A scanty portion only for her ward, Young Adeliza.

MARTIN.

Say her fon were dead, And Adeliza veil'd-

BENEDICT.

I press the latter

With fruitless ardour. Often as I urge it, She pleads the maiden's flushing cheek, and nature, That speaks in characters of glowing rose Its modest appetites and timid wishes. Her fex, she says, when gratified, are frail; When check'd, a hurricane of boundless passions, Then, with fweet irony and fad, the wills me Ask my own breast, if cowls and scapularies Ask my own breast, it cowis and Are charms all powerful to subdue desire?

H MARTIN.

MARTIN.

'Twere wifer school the maiden: lead the train Of young ideas to a fancied object. A mental spouse may fill her hov'ring thoughts, And bar their fixing on some earthly lover.

BENEDICT.

This is already done—but Edmund's death Were hopes more folid—

MARTIN.
First report him dead:

His letters intercepted-

BENEDICT.

Greatly thought,

Thou true fon of the church!—And lo! where comes

Our patroness—Leave me; I will not lose
An instant. I will found her inmost soul,
And mould it to the moment of projection.

[Exit Martin.
[Benedict retires within the cassle.]

S C E N E IV.

COUNTESS, Two Maidens.

COUNTESS.

Haste thee, Maria, to the western tower,
And learn if th' aged pilgrim dozes yet.
You, Elinor, attend my little orphans,
And when their task is done, prepare their breakfast.
But scant th' allowance of the red-hair'd urchin,
That maim'd the poor man's cur—Ah! happy me! [The damfels go in.
If sentiment, untutor'd by affliction,
Had taught my temperate blood to feel for others,
Ere pity, perching on my mangled bosom,

Like

Like flies on wounded flesh, had made me shrink More with compunction than with sympathy! Alas! must guilt then ground our very virtues? Grow they on fin alone, and not on grace? While Narbonne liv'd, my fully-fated foul Thought none unhappy-for it did not think! In pleasures roll'd whole summer suns away; And if a pensive visage cross'd my path, I deem'd the wearer envious or ill-natur'd. What anguish had I bleffedly redress'd, But that I was too bless'd!-Well! peace is fled, Ne'er to return! nor dare I fnap the thread Of life, while mifery may want a friend. Despair and hell must wait, while pity needs My ministry-Eternity has scope Enough to punish me, tho' I should borrow A few fhort hours to facrifice to charity.

SCENE V.

BENEDICT, COUNTESS.

BENEDICT.

I fought you, lady.

COUNTESS.

Happily I'm found.

Who needs the widow's mite?

BENEDICT.

None ask your aid.

Your gracious foresight still prevents occasion:

And your poor beadsman joys to meet your presence,

Uncumbered with a fuit. It pains my foul.

Uncumber'd with a fuit. It pains my foul, Oft as I tax your bounty, left I feem A craving or immodest almoner.

H 2

COUNTESS.

No more of this, good father. I fuspect not
One of your holy order of dissembling:
Suspect not me of loving flattery.
Pass a few years, and I shall be a corpse—
Will flattery then new clothe my skeleton,
Fill out these hollow jaws? Will't give me virtues?
Or at the solemn audit pass for truth,
And varnish o'er my stains?

BENEDICT.

The church could feal

Your pardon—but you fcorn it. In your pride
Confifts your danger. Yours are Pagan virtues:
As fuch I praife them—but as fuch condemn them.

COUNTESS.

Father, my crimes are Pagan; my belief
Too orthodox to trust to erring man.
What! shall I, foul with guilt, and self-condemn'd,
Presume to kneel, where angels kneel appal'd,
And plead a priest's certificate for pardon?
While he, perchance, before my blasted eyes
Shall sink to woes, endless, unutterable,
For having fool'd me into that presumption.

BENEDICT.

Is he to blame, trufting to what he grants?

COUNTESS.

Am I to blame, not trufting what he grants?

BENEDICT.

Yet faith-

COUNTESS.

I have it not—Why fhakes my foul

With

With nightly terrors? Courage fuch as mine Would flart at nought but guilt. 'Tis from within I tremble. Death would be felicity, which the page on the page of Were there no retrospect. What joys have 1? What pleafure foftens, or what friendship foothes My aching bofom?-I have loft my hufband: My own decree has banish'd my own fon.

BENEDICT.

Last night I dreamt your fon was with the bleffed.

COUNTESS.

Would heav'n he were!

BENEDICT. Do you then wish his death?

COUNTESS. word I mad the

Should I not wish him blest?

BENEDICT.

Belike he is:

I never knew my Friday's dreams erroneous.

COUNTESS. Ved more no diddi ovi

Nor I knew superstition in the right.

Madam, I must no longer hear this language.
You do abuse my patience. I have borne, For your foul's health, and hoping your conversion, Opinions most deprav'd. It ill beseems My holy function to give countenance, By lending ear, to such pernicious tenets. The judgments hanging o'er your destin'd head May reach ev'n me.-I fee it! I am rapt Beyond my bearing! My prophetic foul Views the red falchion of eternal justice Cut off your fentenc'd race-Your fon is dead!

COUNTESS.

Dojuft, uncharitable as

COUNTESS.

Father, we no prophetic dæmon bear

Within our breast, but conscience. That has spoken

Words more tremendous than this asted zeal,

This poetry of fond enthusiasm

Can conjure up. It is the still small voice

That breathes conviction. 'Tis that voice has told me,

'Twas my son's birth, not his mortality*,

Must drown my soul in woe.—Those tears are shed.

BENEDICT.

Unjust, uncharitable as your words,
I pardon them. Illy of me you deem;
I know it, lady. 'Tis humiliation:
As such I bow to it—yet dear I tender
Your peace of mind. Dismiss your worthless servant:
His pray'rs shall still be yours.

COUNTESS.

Forgive me, father: Difcretion does not guide my words. I meant No infult on your holy character.

BENEDICT.

No, lady; choose some other monitor, Whose virtues may command your estimation. Your useless beadsman shall behold with joy A worthier man mediate your peace with heav'n.

COUNTESS.

Alas! till reconcil'd with my own breaft, What peace is there for me?

* On the death of the comte de Vermandois, Must I weep for his death before I have done his mother, the duchess de la Valiere said, weeping for his birth?

BENEDICT.

BENEDICT.

In th' neighb'ring district

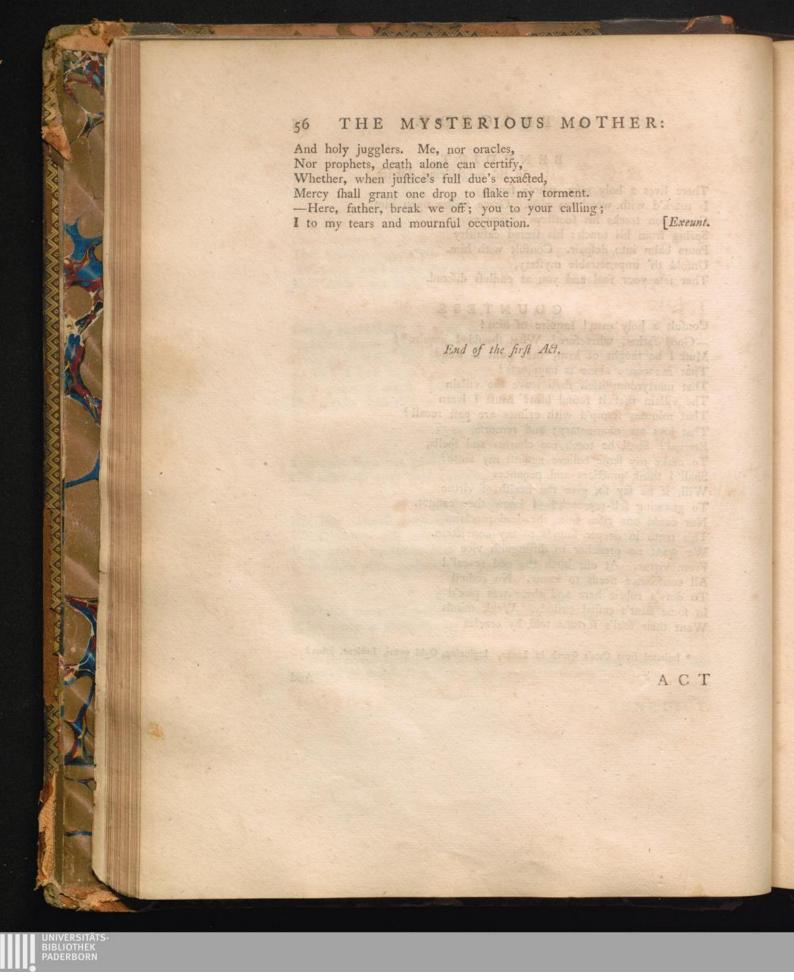

There lives a holy man, whose fanctity
Is mark'd with wondrous gifts. Grace smiles upon him:
Conversion tracks his footsteps: miracles
Spring from his touch: his facred casuistry
Pours balm into despair. Consult with him.
Unfold th' impenetrable mystery,
That sets your soul and you at endless discord.

COUNTESS.

Confult a holy man! Inquire of him! —Good father, wherefore? What should I inquire*? Must I be taught of him, that guilt is woe? That innocence alone is happiness? That martyrdom itself shall leave the villain The villain that it found him? Must I learn That minutes stamp'd with crimes are past recall? That joys are momentary; and remorfe Eternal? Shall he teach me charms and spells, To make my fense believe against my sense? Shall I think practices and penances Will, if he fay fo, give the health of virtue To gnawing felf-reproach ?- I know they cannot. Nor could one rifen from the dead proclaim This truth in deeper founds to my conviction. We want no preacher to diffinguish vice From virtue. At our birth the god reveal'd All confcience needs to know. No codicil To duty's rubric here and there was plac'd In fome faint's cafual cuftody. Weak minds Want their foul's fortune told by oracles

* Imitated from Cato's speech in Lucan, beginning, Quid quæri, Labiene, jubes?

And

ACT the SECOND.

The SCENE continues.

Count EDMUND, FLORIAN.

EDMUND.

OUBT not, my friend; Time's pencil, hardships, war, Some taste of pleasure too, have chas'd the bloom
Of ruddy comeliness, and stamp'd this face
With harsher lineaments, that well may mock
The prying of a mother's eye;—a mother, Thro' whose firm nerves tumultuous instinct's flood Ne'er gush'd with eager eloquence, to tell her, This is your fon! your heart's own voice proclaims him.

F L O R I A N.

If not her love, my lord, fuspect her hatred.

Those jarring passions spring from the same source:

Hate is distemper'd love.

E D M U N D.

E D M U N D.
Why should she hate me? For that my opening paffion's fwelling ardour Prompted congenial necessary joy,
Was that a cause?—Nor was she then so rigid. No fanctified diffembler had poffefs'd Her fcar'd imagination, teaching her, That holiness begins where nature ends. No, Florian, the herfelf was woman then; A fenfual woman. Nor fatiety, A fenfual woman. Nor fatiety,
Sickness and age and virtue's frowardness,
Had so obliterated pleasure's relish—
She might have pardon'd what she felt so well.

Vol. I.

FLORIAN.

FLORIAN.

Forgive me, Edmund; nay, nor think I preach, If I, God wot, of morals loose enough, Seem to condemn you. You have often told me, The night, the very night that to your arms Gave pretty Beatrice's melting beauties, Was the same night on which your father died.

EDMUND.

"Tis true-And thou, fage monitor, dost thou Hold love a crime fo irremissible? Wouldst thou have turn'd thee from a willing girl, To fing a requiem to thy father's foul? I thought my mother busied with her tears, Her faintings, and her maffes, while I stole To Beatrice's chamber.—How my mother Became appriz'd, I know not: but her heart, Never too partial to me, grew estrang'd. Estrang'd!-Aversion in its fellest mood Scowl'd from her eye, and drove me from her fight. She call'd me impious; nam'd my honest lewdness, A prophanation of my father's ashes. I knelt and wept, and, like a puling boy, For now my blood was cool, believ'd, confess'd My father's hov'ring spirit incens'd against me, This weak confession but inflam'd her wrath; And when I would have bath'd her hand with tears, She fnatch'd it back with horror.

FLORIAN.

'Twas the trick

Of over-acted forrow. Grief fatigues;
And each collateral circumstance is seiz'd
To cheat th' uneasy feeling. Sable chambers,
The winking lamp, and pomp of midnight woe,
Are but a specious theatre, on which

Th' in-

Th' inconstant mind with decency forgets Its inward tribute. Who can doubt the love Which to a father's shade devotes the fon?

EDMUND.

Still must I doubt; still deem some mystery,
Beyond a widow's pious artifice,
Lies hid beneath aversion so relentless. All my inheritance, my lordfhips, caftles, My father's lavish love bequeath'd my mother. Chose she some second partner of her bed, Or did she waste her wealth on begging faints, And rogues that act contrition, it were proof
Of her hypocrify, or lust of fame In monkish annals. But to me her hand Is bounteous, as her heart is cold. I tell thee, Bating enjoyment of my native foil, Narbonne's revenues are as fully mine, As if I held them by the strength of charters.

FLORIAN.

Why fet them on the hazard then, when she Who deals them may revoke? Your absence hence EDMUND. The fole condition.

I am weary, Florian, Of fuch a vagrant life. Befits it me, Sprung from a race of heroes, Narbonne's prince, To lend my cafual arm's approved valour
To quarrels, nor my country's nor my own? To stain my fword with random blood?—I fought At Buda 'gainst the Turk-a holy war, So was it deem'd-I fmote the turban'd race: Did zeal, or did ambition nerve my blow? Or matter'd it to me, on Buda's domes
Whether the crefcent or the crofs prevail'd?
Mean time on alien climes I diffipated

Wealth from my fubjects wrung, the peafant's tribute, Earn'd by his toil. Mean time in ruin laid My mould'ring castles—Yes, ye mois-grown walls! Ye tow'rs defenceless!-I revisit ye Shame-stricken.—Where are all your trophies now? Your thronged courts, the revelry, the tumult, That spoke the grandeur of my house, the homage Of neighb'ring barons? Thus did Thibalt, Raoul, Or Clodomir, my brave progenitors, Creep like a fpy, and watch to thrid your gates Unnotic'd? No; with martial attributes, With waving banners and enlivening fifes, They bade your portal wide unfold its jaws, And welcome them and triumph.

FLORIAN.

True, my lord:

They reign'd the monarchs of a fcore of miles; Imperial lords of ev'ry trembling cottage
Within their cannon's mandate. Deadly feuds
For obfolete offences, now array'd
Their livery'd banditti, prompt to deal
On open valleys and unguarded herds,
On helples virgins and unweapon'd boors, The vengeance of their tribe. Sometimes they dar'd To fcowl defiance to the distant throne, and the defiance to the distant throne, Imprison'd, canton'd inaccessibly Imprifon'd, canton'd inaccessibly
In their own rock-built dungeons—Are these glories My Edmund's foul ambitions to revive?

Thus would he bless his vassals?

E D M U N D.

Thy reproof,

My friend, is just. But had I not a cause,

A tender cause, that prompted my return?

This cruel parent, whom I blame, and mourn,

Whose harshness I resent, whose woes I pity. Whose harshness I resent, whose woes I pity,

Has won my love, by winning my respect.

Her letters! Florian; such unstudied strains
Of virtuous eloquence! She bids me, yes,
This praying Magdalen enjoins my courage
To emulate my great forefather's deeds;
Tells me, that shame and guilt alone are mortal;
That death but bars the possibility
Of frailty, and embalms untainted honour.
Then blots and tears essace some half-told woe
Lab'ring in her full bosom. I decypher'd
In one her blessing granted, and eras'd.
And yet what follow'd, mark'd anxiety
For my soul's welfare. I must know this riddle.
I must, will comfort her. She cannot surely,
After such perils, wounds by her command
Encounter'd, after sixteen exil'd years
Spurn me, when kneeling—Think'st thou 'tis possible?

FLORIAN.

I would not think it; but a host of priests
Surround her. They, good men, are seldom found
To plead the cause of pity. Self-denial,
Whose dissonance from nature's kindest laws
By contradicting wins on our perverseness,
Is rank fanaticism's belov'd machine.
Oh! 'twill be heroism, a facrissce,
To curb the torrent of maternal fondness!
You shall be beggar'd, that the saint your mother
May, by cowl'd sycophants and canting jugglers,
Be hail'd, be canoniz'd a new Teresa.
Pray be not seen here: let's again to th' wars.

EDMUND.

No, Florian: my dull'd foul is fick of riot;
Sick of the thoughtless jollity of camps,
Where revelry subsits on desolation,
And shouts of joy contend with dying groans.

Our

Our fports are fleeting; fnatch'd, perhaps, not granted. 'Tis time to bid adieu to vagrant pleasure, And fix the wanderer love. Domestic bliss—

FLORIAN.

Yes, your fair pensioner, young Adeliza, Has sober'd your inconstancy. Her smiles Were exquisite—to rule a family! So matron-like an air—She must be fruitful.

[Ironically.

EDMUND.

Pass we this levity—'Tis true, the maiden Is beauty's type renew'd. Like blooming Eve In nature's young simplicity, and blushing With wonder at creation's opening glow, She charms, unknowing what it is to charm.

FLORIAN.

This is a lover's language—Is she kind?

Cold as the metal bars that part her from me; She liftens, but replies not to my purpose.

This whole month,

While waiting your arrival, I have haunted
Her convent's parlour. 'Tis my mother's wifh
To match her nobly. Hence her guardian abbefs

By worthy bearing, and convenient splendor.

FLORIAN, EDMUND, MARTIN, ORPHANS.

[A procession of children of both sexes, neatly clothed in a white and blue uniform, issue from the castle, followed by friar Martin, and advance towards the stage door. They stop, and the children repeat the following hymn, part of which they should have sung within the castle.]

Throne of justice! lo! we bend.
Thither dare our hopes ascend,
Where seraphs, wrapt in light'ning rays,
Dissolve in mercy's tender blaze?

Sweet children—or, thou fanctified conductor,
Give me to know what folemn pilgrimage,
What expiation of offences past,
Thus fadly ye perform? In whose behoof
To win a bleffing, raise these little suppliants
Their artless hands to heav'n? Pray pardon too

Of grace and peace attend your steps! You seem
A stranger, or you could but know, fir knight,
That Narbonne's pious counters dwells within:
A lady most disconsolate. Her lord,
Her best-beloved, by untimely fate
Was snatch'd away in lusty life's full 'vantage—
But no account made up! no absolution!
Hence scant the distance of a mile he fell.
His weeping relict o'er his spot of doom
A goodly cross erected. Thither we,
At his year's mind, in sad and solemn guise,
Proceed to chant our holy dirge, and offer
Due intercession for his soul's repose.

COUNTESS, PORTER.

PORTER.

Return, my gracious lady. Tho' the fform Abates its clamours, yonder angry clouds Are big with fpouting fires—Do not go forth.

COUNTESS.

Wretches like me, good Peter, dread no storms. 'Tis delicate felicity that shrinks, When rocking winds are loud, and wraps itself Insultingly in comfortable furs, Thinking how many naked objects want Like shelter and security. Do thou Return; I'll seek the monument alone.

PORTER.

No, my good lady; never be it faid
That faithful Peter his dear miftress left
Expos'd to tempests. These thin-sprinkled hairs
Cannot hold long. If in your service shed,
'Twere a just debt—Hark! sure I heard a groan!
Pray let us in again.

COUNTESS.

My honest servant,
Thy fear o'er-pow'rs thy love. I heard no groan;
Nor could it 'scape a fense so quick as mine
At catching misery's expressive note:
'Tis my foul's proper language.—Injur'd shade!
Shade of my Narbonne! if thy scornful spirit
Rode in yon whirlwind, and impell'd its bolt
Implacable! indignant! 'gainst the cross
Rais'd by thy wretched wise—behold she comes
A voluntary victim! Re-assemble
Thy lightnings, and accept her destin'd head.

PORTER.

For pity! gracious dame, what words are thefe!
In any mouth lefs holy they would feem
A magic incantation. Goblins rife
At founds lefs pow'rful. Laft year's 'clipfe fell out,
Because your maidens cross'd a gipfy's palm
To know what was become of Beatrice.

COUNTESS.

And didft thou dare inform them where the dwells?

PORTER.

No, on my duty-True, they think I know; And fo thinks Benedict, your confessor. He fays, she could not pass the castle-gates Without my privity.-Well! I had a talk To fay him nay. The honour of my keys, My office was at stake. No, father, faid I, None pass the drawbridge without Peter's knowledge. How then to beat him from his point?-I had it-Who knows, quoth I, but fudden malady Took off the damfel? She might, or might not, Have fepulture within the castle-walls.

Peace, fool!—And thus thy shrewd equivocation Has flain'd my name with murder's foul fuspicion. -O peace of virtue! thy true votaries Quail not with ev'ry blaft! I cloak my guilt! Things foreign rife and load me with their blackness. Erroneous imputation must be borne; Left, while unravelling the knotty web, I lend a clue may vibrate to my heart. -But who comes here?-Retire we and observe. [They withdraw.

FLORIAN.

"Tis not far off the time the porter will'd me Expect him here. My friend, indulging grief, Chofe no companion of his penfive walk. Yes, I must serve thee. May my prosp'rous care Restore thee to thy state, and aid thy love To make the blooming Adeliza thine!

COUNTESS, apart to the PORTER. Methought he fpoke of love and Adeliza. Who may it be?

> PORTER. I never heard his name.

COUNTESS, approaching. Stranger, did chance or purpose guide thy steps To this lone dwelling?

[PORTER makes figns to FLORIAN not to discover their former interview.

FLORIAN.

Pardon, gentle lady, If, curious to behold the pious matron Whom Narbonne's plains obey, I fought this caftle, And deem my wish indulg'd in viewing thee.

C O U N T E S S.

Me! ftranger? Is affliction then fo rare

It occupies the babbler Fame?—Oh! no. My forrows are not new. Aufterities

And rigid penance tempt no curious eyes.

Nor fpeaks your air defire of fearching out The house of mourning. Rather should you feek Some unfunn'd beauty, fome unpractis'd fair one, Who thinks the first fort founds she hears, are love. There may be fuch at Narbonne: none dwell here, But melancholy, forrow, and contrition.

FLORIAN. Pleasure has charms; but so has virtue too. One skims the furface, like the swallow's wing, And feuds away unnotic'd. T'other nymph, Like spotless swans in solemn majesty, Breafts the full furge, and leaves long light behind.

COUNTESS.

COUNTESS.

Your courtly phrase, young knight, bespeaks a birth Above the vulgar. May I ask, how old Your residence in Narbonne? whence your race?

FLORIAN.

In Brabant was I born: my father's name, The baron of St. Orme. I wait at Narbonne My letters of exchange, while paffing homewards To gather my late fire's no mean fuccession.

COUNTESS.

Dead is your father, and unwet your cheek? Trust me, young sir, a father's guardian arm Were well worth all the treasures it withheld. A mother might be fpar'd.

FLORIAN.

Mothers like thee

Were bleffings.

COUNTESS.

Curfes!

PORTER.

Lady, 'tis the hour Of pray'r. Shall I ring out the chapel-bell?

COUNTESS.

Stranger, I'm fummon'd hence. Within these walls I may not fpeak with thee: my folemn purpose Admits no converse with unsteady youth. But at St. Bridget's nunnery, to-morrow, If you can spare some moments from your pastime, In presence of the abbess, I would talk with thee.

SCENE V.

FLORIAN, alone.

So, this is well. My introduction made, It follows that I move her for her fon. She feems of gentler mould than fame befpoke her; Nor wears her eye the faucy superiority Of bigot pride. Who knows but she may wish To shake the trammels of enthusiasm off, And reconcile herfelf to easier paths Of fimple goodness? Women oft wear the mask Of piety to draw respect, or hide The loss of it. When age dispells the train That waits on beauty, then religion blows Her trumpet, and invites another circle; Who, full as false as the preceding crew, Flatter her problematic mental charms: While fnuffing incenfe, and devoutly wanton, The Pagan goddess grows a Christian faint, And keeps her patent of divinity. Well! Edmund, whatfoe'er thy mother be, I'll put her virtue or hypocrify To the feverest test .- Countess, expect me!

ACT

ACT the THIRD.

SCENE I.

A fmall Garden within the Castle, terminated by a long Cloister, beyond which appear some Towers.

COUNTESS, alone. THE monument destroy'd!—Well! what of that? Were ev'ry thunderbolt address'd to me, Not one would miss me. Fate's unerring hand Darts not at random. Nor, as fractious children Are chid by proxy, does it deal its wrath On stocks and stones to frighten, not chastise us. Omens and prodigies are but begotten By guilt on pride. We know the doom we merit; And felf-importance makes us think all nature Bufied to warn us when that doom approaches. Fie! fie! I blush to recollect my weakness. My Edmund may be dead: the house of Narbonne May perish from this earth: poor Adeliza May tafte the cup of woe that I have drug'd: But lightnings play not to announce our fate: No whirlwinds rife to prophefy to mites: Nor, like inquifitors, does heav'n drefs up In flames the victims it intends to punish; Making a holiday for greater finners. -Greater! oh! impious! Were the faggots plac'd Around me, and the fatal torch applied, What wretch could view the dreadful apparatus, And be a blacker criminal than I am? Perhaps my virtues but enhance my guilt. .

Penance

Penance attracts respect, and not reproach.

How dare I be esteem'd? Be known my crimes!

Let shame anticipate the woes to come!

—Hah! monster! wouldst disclose the frightful scene?

Wouldst teach the vicious world unheard-of sins,

And be a new apostle of perdition?

—My Edmund too! has not a mother's hand

Afflicted him enough? Shall this curs'd tongue

Brand him with shame indelible, and sting

His honest bosom with his mother's scorpions?

Shall Adeliza hear the last of horrors,

Ere her pure breast, that sighs for sins it knows not,

Has learn'd the rudiments of human frailty?

No, hapless maid—

Enter a Servant.

Madam, young Adeliza

Entreats to fpeak with you. The lady abbefs
Sickens to death.

C O U N T E S S.

Admit her.—Now, my foul,

Recall thy calm; fupport alone thy torments;

And envy not the peace thou ne'er must know.

SCENE II.

COUNTESS, ADELIZA.

Approach, fweet maid. Thy melancholy mien Speaks thy compassionate and feeling heart. 'Tis a grave lession for thy blooming years, A scene of dissolution! But when Death Expands his pinions o'er a bed so holy, Sure he's a welcome guest.

A D E L I Z A.
Oh! do not doubt it.
The pious matron meets him like a friend

Expected

Expected long. And if a tender tear,
At leaving your poor ward, melts in her eye,
And downward finks its fervent ecftacy;
Still does impatience to be gone, betray
Her inward fatisfaction. Yesternight,
As weeping, praying, by her couch I knelt,
Behold, my Adeliza, mark, she faid,
How happy the death-bed of innocence *!
Oh! lady, how those founds affected me!
I wish'd to die with her—and oh! forgive me,
If in that moment I forgot my patroness!

COUNTESS.

It was a wish devout. Can that want pardon?
But to confess it, speaks thy native candour.
Thy virtuous, thy ingenuous truth disdains
To hide a thought—

ADELIZA, falling at her feet.

Oh! can I hear this praise,

And not expire in blushes at thy feet?

COUNTESS.

What means this paffion?

ADELIZA.

Ah! recall thy words:

Thy Adeliza merits no encomium,

COUNTESS.

Thou art too modest. Praise is due to truth.

Thou shouldst not seek it; nor should I withhold it.

ADELIZA.

For pity, spare me.—No, my honour'd mistress, I merit not—oh! no, my guilty heart Deserves thy frowns—I cannot speak—

* Dr. Young relates that Mr. Addison, on his death-bed, spoke in this manner to his pupil lord Warwick.

COUNTESS.

COUNTESS.

Be calm:

Thou know'st no guilt. Unfold thy lab'ring breast.
Say, am not I thy friend? Me canst thou fear?

ADELIZA.

Can I fear aught beside? fear aught but goodness? Has not thy lavish bounty cloth'd me, sed me? Hast thou not taught me virtue? Whom on earth But such a benefactress, such a friend, Can Adeliza fear? Alas! she knows No other friend! and christian fortitude Dreads not a foe.—Methinks I would have said That christian innocence—but shame restrain'd My conscious tongue—I am not innocent.

COUNTESS.

Thou dearest orphan, to my bosom come, And vent thy little forrows. Purity Like thine affrights itself with fancied guilt. I'll be thy confessor; and trust me, love, Thy penance will be light.

ADELIZA.

In vain you cheer me.

Say, what is guilt, but to have known a thought I blush'd to tell thee? to have lent mine ear, For three long weeks, to sounds I did not wish My patroness should hear! Ah! when till now Have I not hoped thy presence, thought it long, If two whole days detain'd thee from our mass? When have I wept, but when thou hast refus'd To let thy Adeliza call thee mother? I know I was not worthy of such honour, Too splendid for a child of charity.

I now am most unworthy! I, undone,

Have

)

Have not defir'd thy presence; have not thought it Long, if two days thou hast declin'd our mass. Other discourse than thine has charm'd mine ear; Nor dare I now prefume to call thee mother!

COUNTESS.

My lovely innocence, restrain thy tears. I know thy fecret; know, why beats and throbs Thy little heart with unaccustom'd tumult.

ADELIZA.

Impossible.—Oh! let me tell thee all—

COUNTESS.

No; I will tell it thee. Thou haft convers'd With a young knight-

ADELIZA.

Amazement! Who inform'd thee?

Pent in her chamber, fickness has detain'd Our abbefs from the parlour. There I faw him, Oft as he came alone.

COUNTESS.

He talk'd of love;

And woo'd thee for his bride.

ADELIZA. He did.

COUNTESS.

('Tis well: Afide.

This is the stranger I beheld this morning.) His father dead, he haftes to take possession Of his paternal fortunes—Is't not fo?

ADELIZA:

He forrows for a father-fomething too He utter'd of a large inheritance That should be his-In truth I mark'd it not.

COUNTESS.

COUNTESS.

But when he spoke of love, thy very foul Hung on his lips. Say, canst thou not repeat Each word, each fyllable? His accent too Thou notedft: still it rings upon thine ear. And then his eyes-they look'd fuch wondrous truth; Art thou not fure he cannot have deceiv'd thee?

ADELIZA.

Alas! my noble mistress, thou dost mock Poor Adeliza-What can I reply?

COUNTESS.

The truth. Thy words have ever held its language. Say, dost thou love this stranger? Hast thou pledg'd Thy faith to him?

ADELIZA.

Angels forbid! What faith have I to give? Can I dispose of aught without thy leave?

COUNTESS.

Infinuating foftness!-ftill thou turnest Afide my question. Thou dost love this stranger.

ADELIZA.

Yes, with fuch love as that I feel for thee. His virtues I revere: his earnest words Sound like the precepts of a tender parent: And, next to thee, methinks I could obey him.

COUNTESS.

Ay, as his wife.

ADELIZA.

Oh! never. What, to lose him,

As thou thy Narbonne?

COUNTESS, Check not, Adeliza,

Thy undevelop'd passion. Should this stranger Prove what my wish has form'd, and what his words Report him, it would bless my woeful days To see thee plac'd above the reach of want, And distant from this residence of forrow.

ADELIZA.

What! wouldn't thou fend me from thee? Oh! for pity! I cannot, will not leave thee. If thy goodness Withdraw its bounty, at thy castle-gate I'll wait, and beg those alms thy gracious hand To none refuses. I shall see thee pass, And, pass'd, will kiss thy footsteps—Wilt thou spurn me? Well then, I'll die and bless thee.—Oh! this stranger! 'Tis he has done this; he has drawn thy anger On thy poor ward!—I'll never see him more.

COUNTESS.

Be calm, my lovely orphan! hush thy fears.
Heav'n knows how fondly, anxiously I love thee!
The stranger's not to blame. Myself will task him,
And know if he deserves thee. Now retire,
Nor slack thy duty to th' expiring faint.
A lover must not weigh against a friend.
And lo! where comes the friar. 'Twere not sit
He knew my purpose. Benedict, I fear,
Has views on this side heav'n.

BENEDICT.

The dew of grace

Rest on this dwelling!

COUNTESS.

Thanks, my ghoftly friend.

Vol. 1.

But

But fure, or I mistake, in your sad eye
I spell affliction's signature. What woes
Call for the scanty balm this hand can pour?

BENEDICT.

You, lady, and you only, need that balm.

COUNTESS.

To tutor my unapt and ill-school'd nature You come then—Good my confessor, a truce With doctrines and authority. If aught Can medicate a foul unfound like mine, Good deeds must operate the healthful change, And penance cleanse it to receive the blessing. Shall I for faith, shall I, for but believing What 'tis my int'rest to believe, essace The stains, which, tho' believing, I contracted?

BENEDICT.

Lady, your fubtle wit, like daring infants,
Sports with a weight will crush it—But no more.
It is not mine to argue, but pronounce.
The church, on rock of adamant establish'd,
Now inch by inch disputes not its domain.
Heav'n's law promulg'd, it rests obedience follow.
And when supreme It taxes that obedience,
Not at impracticable, vain perfection,
But rates its prodigality of blessings
At the slight credence of its pow'r to grant them;
Shall man with stoic pride reject the boon,
And cry, We will do more, we will deserve it * ?

COUNTESS.

Deferve it!—Oh! have all your fainted hofts, Your choirs of martyrs, or your clouds of cherubim,

* We will do more, Sempronius, we'll deferve it.

Portius in CATO.

Deferv'd

Deferv'd to feel the transport but of hope?
Away; nor tell me of this holy juggle
'Twixt faith and conscience. Shall the latter roam,
Wasting and spoiling with a ruffian hand,
While her accomplice faith, wrapt up at home
In proud security of self-existence,
Thinks that existence shall absolve them both?

BENEDICT.

'Twas not to war with words, so heav'n's my judge, That your poor rated servant sought your presence. I came with charitable friendly purpose To soothe—But wherefore mitigate your griefs? You mock my friendship, and miscall my zeal. Since then to counsel, comfort, and reproof Obdurate—learn the measure of your woes: Learn, if the mother's fortitude can brave The bolt the woman's arrogance desied.

COUNTESS.

The mother! faidst thou?

BENEDICT.

Yes, imperious dame: Yes, 'twas no vision rais'd by dreams and fumes, Begot 'twixt nightly fear and indigestion: Nor was it artifice and pious fraud, When but this morning I announc'd thy Edmund Was number'd with the dead.

Ere the destroying angel's kindling brand
Smokes in the tow'rs of Narbonne.

Such infolent reproof. Produce thy warrant,

Do not my fears tell thee?

Look up! O ever dear! behold thy fon! It is thy Edmund's voice; bleft, if thy eyes Awake to bless him .- Soft! her pulse returns; She breathes !- Oh! fpeak. Dear parent, mother, hear! 'Tis Edmund.—Friar, wherefore is this horror?

Am I then deadly to her eyes?—Dumb ftill! Speak, tho' it be to curse me. - I have kill'd her! My brain grows hot—

COUNTESS.

Hah! where am I?

Why do you hold me? Was it not my Narbonne? I faw him-on my foul I did.

BENEDICT.

Madam, behold your fon: he kneels for pardon. And I, I innocent, I ignorant Of what he was, implore it too.

COUNTESS.

What means this complicated fcene of horrors? Why thus affail my splitting brain?—Be quick—Art thou my husband wing'd from other orbs To taunt my soul? What is this dubious form, Impress'd with ev'ry feature I adore, And ev'ry lineament I dread to look on? Art thou my dead or living son?

EDMUND.

How?-In that cruel breaft

Revive then all fensations, but affection?
Why so ador'd the memory of the father,
And so abhor'd the presence of the son?
But now, and to thy eyes I seem'd my father—
At least for that resemblance-sake embrace me.

COUNTESS.

Horror on horror! Blafted be thy tongue! What founds are those?

BENEDICT.

Lady, tho' I excuse not

This young lord's difobedience, his contrition Bespeaks no rebel principle. I doubt not, Your bleffing first obtain'd and gracious pardon, But soon as morning streaks the ruddy East, He will obey your pleasure, and return To stranger climes.

EDMUND.

'Tis false; I will not hence.

I have been fool'd too long, too long been patient. Nor are my years fo green as to endure
The manacles of priests and nurseries.
Am I not Narbonne's prince? Who shall rule here
But Narbonne? Have I sapp'd my country's laws,
Or play'd the tyrant? Who shall banish me?
Am I a recreant knight? Has cowardice
Disgrac'd the line of heroes I am sprung from?
Shall I then skulk, hide my inglorious head?

Or

Or does it please your worship's gravity
Dispatch me on some sleeveless pilgrimage,
Like other noble fools, to win you empires;
While you at home mock our credulity,
The masters of our wealth, our states, and wives?

COUNTESS.

Afide.] (Brave youth! there spoke his fire. How my foul yearns To own its genuine offspring!)—Edmund, hear me! Thou art my son, and I will prove a mother. But I'm thy sovereign too. This state is mine. Learn to command, by learning to obey. Tho' frail my fex, I have a soul as masculine As any of thy race. This very monk, Lord as thou thinkest of my ductile conscience, Quails—look if 'tis not true—when I command. Retire thee to the village. 'Tis not ripe As yet my purpose—Benedict, attend me.

To-morrow, Edmund, shalt thou learn my pleasure.

[Ext. Countess and Benedict.

E D M U N D, alone.

Why, this is majesty. Sounds of such accent Ne'er struck mine ear till now. Commanding sex! Strength, courage, all our boasted attributes, Want estimation; ev'n the preheminence We vaunt in wisdom, seems a borrow'd ray, When virtue deigns to speak with semale organs. Yes, O my mother, I will learn t'obey: I will believe, that, harsh as thy decrees, They wear the warrant of benign intention. Make but the blooming Adeliza mine, And bear, of me unquestion'd, Narbonne's sceptre; Till life's expiring lamp by intervals Throws but a fainter and a fainter flash, And then relumes its wasted oil no more.

ACT the FOURTH.

The SCENE continues.

BENEDICT, MARTIN.

MARTIN.

I KNOW thy spirit well; know how it labours, When curb'd, and driv'n to wear the mask of art. But till this hour I have not feen thy passions Boil o'er the bounds of prudence. So impetuous, And fo referv'd!

BENEDICT.

Mistake me not, good brother: I want no confidence: I know thy faith. But can I to thy naked eye unfold What I dare scarce reveal to my own bosom? I would not know one half that I suspect, Till I have acted as if not fuspecting.

MARTIN.

How, brother! thou a cafuift! and apply To thy own breast those damning subtleties, Which cowards with half-winking confciences Purchase of us, when they would fin secure, And hope the penalty will all be ours!

BENEDICT.

Brother, this moment is too big with action To waste on bootless curiosity. When I try fins upon the touchstone conscience, It is for others' use, not for my own. Vol. I.

'Tis time enough to make up our account, When we confess, and kneel for absolution.

MARTIN.

Still does thy genius foar above mankind! How many fathers of our holy church In Benedict I view!

BENEDICT.

No flattery, brother.

'Tis true the church owes Benedict fome thanks. For her, I have forgot I am a man. For her, each virtue from my breaft I banish. No laws I know but her prosperity; No country, but her boundless acquisitions. Who dares be true to country, king or friend, If enemies to Rome, are Benedict's foes.

MARTIN.

Has it then gone fo far? Does she speak out? Is Edmund too infected with like errors?

BENEDICT.

Both, brother, both are thinking heretics. I could forgive them, did fome upftart fect With sharper rigours charm their headlong zeal. But they, in footh, must reason—Curses light On the proud talent! 'twill at last undo us. When men are gorged with each absurdity Their subtle wits can frame, or we adopt; For very novelty they will sly to sense, And we shall fall before that idol, fashion.

MARTIN.

Fear not a reign fo transient. Statesmen too Will join to stem the torrent: or new follies Replace the old. Each chieftain that attacks us Must grow the pope of his own heresy. E'en stern philosophy, if once triumphant,

Shall.

Shall frame some jargon, and exact obedience
To metaphysic nonsense worse than ours.

The church is but a specious name for empire,
And will exist wherever sools have fears.
Rome is no city; 'tis the human heart;
And there suffice it if we plant our banners.
Each priest cannot command—and thence come sects.
Obdurate Zeno and our great Augustine
Are of one faith, and differ but for power.

BENEDICT.

So be it—Therefore interest bids us crush This cockatrice and her egg: or we shall see The singing faints of Savoy's neighb'ring vale Fly to the covert of her shadowy wings, And soil us at our own dexterity. Already to those vagrants she inclines; As if the rogues, that preach reform to others, Like idiots, minded to reform themselves.

MARTIN.

Be cautious, brother: you may lose the lady.

BENEDICT.

She is already lost—or ne'er was ours. I cannot dupe, and therefore must destroy her: Involve her house in ruin so prodigious,

That neither she nor Edmund may survive it.

MARTIN.

How may this be accomplish'd?

BENEDICT.

Ask me not.

From hints long treasur'd up, from broken phrase In phrensy dropp'd, but vibrating from truth: Nay, from her caution to explain away

What

What the late tempest of her soul had utter'd, I guess her fatal secret—Or, no matter—Say, I do not—by what she has forbidden, I know what should be done.—Then haste thee, brother; Facilitate count Edmund's interview
With Adeliza; nourish their young passion—
Curse them—and if you can—why—join their hands.

MARTIN.

I tremble!

BENEDICT.

Dastard, tremble, if we fail. What can we fear, when we have ruin'd them?

(A deep-toned voice is heard.)

Forbear!

BENEDICT.

Ha! whence that found?

(Voice again.) Forbear!

BENEDICT.

Again!

Comes it from heav'n or hell?

(Voice again.) Forbear!

BENEDICT, MARTIN, ADELIZA, FRIARS.

[A procession of friars chanting a funeral anthem, and followed by ADELIZA, advance slowly from a cloister at the end of the stage.]

The ANTHEM.
Forbear! forbear! forbear!
The pious are heav'n's care.
Lamentations ill become us,
When the good are ravish'd from us.
The pangs of death but smooth the way
To visions of eternal day.

BENEDICT.

[ Afide to MARTIN.

Now, man of aspin conscience! lo! the gods, That sentence Benedict's unholy purpose! Art thou a priest? Wast thou initiated In each fond mummery that subdues the vulgar, And standest thou appall'd at our own thunders?

MARTIN.

Who trembled first? It was thy guilty conscience That gave th' alarm to mine.

BENEDICT.

Peace, dotard, peace!

Nor when the lamb is nigh, must eagles wrangle.

Fair faint, give us to know why flow these tears;

Why sighs that gentle bosom; and why chant ye

That heav'n-invoking soul-dissolving dirge?

[ To ADELIZA.

ADELIZA.

Ah! holy father, art thou then to learn.
The pious abbess is at peace? We go
To bear her parting bleffing to the Countess.

BENEDIČT.

BENEDICT.

It must not be. Occasions of much import Engross her faculties. By me she wills you Restrain your steps within the cloister's pale, Nor grant access but to one stranger knight.

ADELIZA.

Is't possible? Can my dear mistress bar
Her faithful handmaid from her gracious presence?
Shall I not pour my forrows in her bosom,
And moisten it with grief and gratitude?
Two friends were all poor Adeliza's wealth.
Lo! one is gone to plead the orphan's cause.
My patroness, like Tobit's guardian spirit*,
Consirms my steps, and points to realms of glory.
She will not quit me in this vale of bondage;
She must be good, who teaches what is goodness.

BENEDICT.

(Indeed! my pretty prattler!—Then am I As found a faint as e'er the rubric boasted.

—Ha! 'tis the Countess—now for my obedience.)
Young lady, much I marvel at these murmurs.
Just sense and sober piety still dictate
The Countess's commands. With truth I say it,
My sins diminish, as I copy her.

BENEDICT.

Madam, I was urging

The fitness of your orders; but vain youth Scoff'd my importunate rebuke,

ADELIZA.

Oh! no.

I am the thing you made me. Crush me, spurn me, I will not murmur. Should you bid me die, I know 'twere meant in kindness.

COUNTESS.

Bid thee die!

My own detefted life but lingers round thee!
Ha! what a glance was there! It fpoke refemblance
To all I hate, adore—My child, retire:
I am much difcompos'd—the good old abbefs
Claims thy attendance.

ADELIZA.

Mercy crown her foul!

She needs no duty we can pay her now.

COUNTESS.

How! art thou defolate? not a friend left
To guard thy innocence?—Oh! wretched maid!
Must thou be left to spoilers? or worse, worse,
To the sierce onset of thy own dire passions?
Oh! is it come to this?

ADELIZA.

My noble mistress,

Can Adeliza want a ministring angel, When shelter'd by thy wing?—Yet Benedict Says, I must shun this hospitable roof. Indeed I thought it hard.

COUNTESS.

Did he audacious dare forbid my child, My little orphan, to embrace her-Curfes Swell in my throat-Hence-or they fall on thee.

SCENE

SCENE IV.

COUNTESS, ADELIZA.

COUNTESS.

Now, Adeliza, fummon all thy courage.
Retrace my precepts past: nor let a tear
Profane a moment that's worth martyrdom.
Remember, patience is the christian's courage.
Stoics have bled, and demigods have died.
A christian's task is harder—'tis to suffer.

ADELIZA.

Alas! have I not learnt the bitter lesson?
Have I not borne thy woes? What is to come
Can tax my patience with a ruder trial?

COUNTESS.

Oh! yes, thou must do more. Adversity
Has various arrows. When the soul is steel'd
By meditation to encounter forrow,
The soe of man shifts his artillery,
And drowns in luxury and careless softness
The breast he could not storm. Canst thou bear wealth,
And pleasure's melting couch? Thou hast known virtue
But at a scanty board. She has awak'd thee
To chilling vapours in the midnight vault,
And beckon'd thee to hardships, tears, and penance.
Wilt thou acknowledge the divine instructress,
When syren pleasures lap thee in delights?

ADELIZA.

If fuch the witchery that waits on guilt,
Why fhould I feek th' enchantress and her wiles?
The virgin veil shall guard my spotless hours,
Assure my peace, and faint me for hereafter.

Vol. I. COUNTESS.

COUNTESS.

It cannot be-To Narbonne thou must bid a last adieu, And with the stranger knight depart a bride.

Unhappy me! too fure I have o'erburthen'd Unhappy me! too fure I have o'erburthen'd
Thy charity, if thou wouldst drive me from thee.
Restrain thy alms, dear lady. I have learnt
From our kind sister-hood the needle's art.
My needle and thy smiles will life support. Pray let me bring my last embroidery; 'Tis all by my own hand. Indeed I meant it For my kind lady's festival.

COUNTESS. Great justice!

Does this stroke pierce not deep enough? These tears, Wrung from my vital fondness, scald they not Worse than the living coal that sears the limbs?

ADELIZA.

Alas! thou hearest not! What grief o'erwhelms thee? Why darts thy eye into my inmost foul; Then vacant, motionless, arrests its course, Then vacant, motionless, arrests its course,
And seems not to perceive what it reads there? My much-lov'd patroness!

COUNTESS. O Adeliza,

Thy words now flake, and now augment my fever! But oh! ere reason quits this lab'ring frame, While I dare weep these tears of anguish o'er thee, Unutterable, petrifying anguish! Hear my last breath. Avoid the scorpion pleasure. Death lurks beneath the velvet of his lip,

And but to think him over, is perdition!

O retrospect of horror!

To the altar!

Haste, Adeliza,—vow thou wilt be wretched!

ADELIZA.

Dost thou then doom me to eternal forrows? Hast thou deceiv'd me? Is not virtue, happiness?

COUNTESS.

I know not that. I know that guilt is torture.

ADELIZA.

Sure pestilence has flapp'd his baleful wing,
And shed its poison o'er thy faintlike reason!
When thou so patient, holy, so resign'd,
Doubtest of virtue's health, of virtue's peace.
—But 'tis to try me—Look upon this relic:
'Twas the good abbess's bequest. "Twill chase
The siend that walks at twilight.

COUNTESS.

How she melts me!

What have I faid?—My lovely innocence,
Thou art my only thought—Oh! wast thou form'd
The child of sin?—and dare I not embrace thee?
Must I with eager ecstacy gaze on thee,
Yet curse the hour that stamp'd thee with a being?

ADELIZA.

Alas! was I then born the child of fin?
Who were my parents? I will pray for them.

COUNTESS.

Oh! if the bolt must come, here let it strike me!

[Flinging herself on the ground.

Nature! these feelings were thy gift. Thou knowest How ill I can resist thy forceful impulse.

02

If

If these emotions are imputed to me,
I have one sin I cannot yet repent of!

ADELIZA.

Oh! raise thee from the earth. Shall I behold thee Prostrate, embracing an unfriended beggar? Or dost thou mock me still? What is my lot? Wilt thou yet cherish me? Or do the great Exalt us but in sport, lend us a taste, A vision of enjoyment, and then dash us To poverty, more poignant by comparison? Sure I could never wanton with affliction!

COUNTESS.

Ah! canst thou doubt this conflict of the soul?

Mock thee!—Oh! yes, there are such savage natures,

That will deride thy woes—and thou must bear it—

With foul reproach will gall thy spotless soul,

And taunt thee with a crime past thy conceiving.

Oh! 'tis to shield thee from this world of forrows,

That thou must fly, must wed, must never view

The tow'rs of Narbonne more; must never know

The doom reserv'd for thy sad patroness!

ADELIZA.

Who threatens thy dear life? Recall thy fon. His valiant arm will frem a hoft of foes, Replace thy lord, and woo thee to be happy.

COUNTESS.

Hah! little imp of darkness! dost thou wear That angel form to gird me with upbraidings? Fly, ere my rage forget distinction, nature, And make a medley of unheard-of crimes. Fly, ere it be too late—

ADELIZA.
For pity!

COUNTESS.

COUNTESS.

Hence!

Pity would bid me ftab thee, while the charm Of ignorance locks thee in its happy flumbers.

ADELIZA.

Alas! she raves-I will call help.

[Exit.

COUNTESS, alone.

[After a long paufe, in which she looks tenderly after ADELIZA. She's gone.

-That pang, great God, was my last facrifice!-Now recollect thyfelf, my foul! confummate The pomp of horror with tremendous coolness. "Tis fit that reason punish passion's crime. -Reafon !-alas! 'tis one of my convulfions! Now it empow'rs me past myfelf; now leaves me Exhausted, spiritless, eyeing with despair The heights I cannot reach. Then madness comes, Imperial fool! and promifes to waft me Beyond the grin of fcorn-But who fits there, Supereminent?—'Tis confcience!——Phrenfy shield me! I know the foe-See! fee! he points his lance! He plunges it all flaming in my foul, And down I fink, lost in eternal anguish!

She is not here. Shall we not follow her? Such agonies of paffion! Sure fome dæmon Affaults her. Thou shalt pray by her. Indeed I tremble for her life.

BENEDICT.

BENEDICT.

Thou know'st her not.

Her transport is sectious. 'Tis the coinage
Of avarice and caprice. Dost thou not see
Her bounty wearies? While thy babbling years
Wore the trick of novelty, thou wast her plaything.
The charity of the great must be amus'd.
Mere merit surfeits it; affliction kills it.
The sick must jest and gambol to attract
Their pity.—Come, I'll warrant, thou hast wept,
And told her heav'n would register each ducat
Her piety had spar'd to clothe and feed thee.
Go to; thou hast estrang'd her; and she means

ADELIZA.

Upbraid my patroness! I! I upbraid her, Who see her now the angel that she will be! How knew I virtue, goodness, but from her? Her lessons taught me heav'n; her life reveal'd it. The wings of gratitude must bear me thither, Or I deserve not Paradise.

To drive thee hence, left thou upbraid her change.

BENEDICT.

Thou art young.

Thy novice ear imbibes each filver found,
And deems the mufic warbled all by truth.

Grey hairs are not fool'd thus. I know this Countess:
An errant heretic. She fcoffs the church.

When did her piety adorn our altars?

What holy garments gliften with her gifts?

The fabric of our convent threatens ruin—
Does she repair it?—No. On lazy lepers,
On foldiers maim'd and swearing from the wars
She lavishes her wealth——But note it, young one;
Her days are number'd; and thou shalt do wifely
To quit her ere the measure is complete.

ADELIZA.

ADELIZA.

Alas! fhe bids me go. She bids me wed The stranger knight that woo'd me at our parlour.

BENEDICT.

And thou shalt take her at her word. Myself Will join your hands-And lo! in happy hour Who comes to meet her boon.

Dost thou confent, fweet passion of my foul? May I then class thee to my heart?

ADELIZA.

Forbear!

It must not be-Thou shalt not wed a beggar.

EDMUND.

A beggar! Thou art riches, opulence.
The flaming ruby and the dazzling di'mond,
Set in the world's first diadem, could not add
A ray to thy least charm—For pity, grant me
To breathe my warmth into this marble hand.

ADELIZA.

Never!—This orphan, this abandon'd wanderer,
Taunted with poverty, with shameful origin,
Dower'd with no lot but scorn, shall ne'er bestow
That, her sole portion, on a lordly husband.

BENEDICT.

My lord, the Countess is my gracious mistress:
My duty bade me to report her words.
It feems her charities circumscribe her wishes.
This goodly maiden has full long experienc'd Her amplest bounty. Other piteous objects
Call for her largess. Lovely Adeliza
Plac'd in your arms can never feel affliction.
This the good Countess knows—

Th' impetuous count, fir'd with th' impure fuggestion, As if descending clouds had spread their pillows To meet the preffure of his eager transports, Would have forerun the rites. Ah! master,

You feem too good to mock our mifery.

A foldier causes woe, but seldom jeers it. Or know'st thou not-(And fure 'twill pity thee!) The gracious Countess, our kind lady—(Indeed I trust they will return)—is strangely chang'd!

FLORIAN.

By my good fword, thou shalt unriddle, priest. What means this tale? What mintage is at work
To coin delufion, that this fair domain
May become holy patrimony? Thus Teach you our matrons to defraud their iffue By artificial fits and acted ravings? I have beheld your juggles, heard your dreams. Th' imposture shall be known. These sixteen years
Has my friend Edmund pin'd in banishment:
While masses, mummings, goblins and processions While maffes, mummings, goblins and processions
Usurp'd his heritage, and made of Narbonne And fainted frauds. But day darts on your fpells. Th' enlighten'd age eschews your vile deceits, And truth shall do mankind and Edmund justice.

BENEDICT. 14 SELT MUOD

Unhallow'd boy, I fcorn thy contumely. In camps and trenches vent thy lewd reproaches, Blafpheming while ye tremble. Heav'n's true foldiers, Endu'd with more than mortal courage, defy
Hofts numerous as the Pagan chivalry
Pour'd forth to crush the church's riting glories.

--But

But this is an enlighten'd age!—Behold

The triumphs of your fect! to yonder plains

Bend thy illumin'd eye! The Vaudois there,

Writhing in flames, and quiv'ring at th' approach

Of Rome's impending knife, atteft the bleffings

Conferr'd on their inftructed ignorance!

FLORIAN.

Monstrous! unparallel'd! Are cries and groans

Of butcher'd conscientious men the hymns

With which you chant the victories of the church?

Do you afflict and laugh? stab and huzza?

—But I am dallying with my own impatience—

Where is this mother? I will tent her foul;

And warn thee, if I find suggestion's whisper

Has practis'd to the detriment of my friend,

Thy caitiff life shall answer to my sword,

Tho' shrin'd within the pillars of the Vatican.

BENEDICT.

Judge heaven betwixt us!

If, ere the dews of night shall fall, thou feest not

The cup of wrath pour'd out, and triple woes

O'ertake unheard-of crimes; call me false prophet,

Renounce my gods, and join thee to the impious!

Thou in thy turn, if truth lives on my lips,

Tremble! repent!—behold! the hour approaches!

I never must behold her!—never more
Review this theatre of monstrous guilt!

No; to th' embattled foe I will present

This hated form—and welcome be the sabre

That leaves no atom of it undefac'd!

POSTSCRIPT.

POSTSCRIPT.

ROM the time that I first undertook the foregoing scenes, I never flattered myfelf that they would be proper to appear on the stage. The fubject is fo horrid, that I thought it would shock rather than give satisfaction to an audience. Still I found it fo truly tragic in the two effential fprings of terror and pity, that I could not refift the impulse of adapting it to the scene, though it should never be practicable to produce it there. I saw too that it would admit of great fituations, of lofty characters, and of those fudden and unforeseen strokes, which have singular effect in operating a revolution in the passions, and in interesting the spectator. It was capable of furnishing, not only a contrast of characters, but a contrast of vice and virtue in the same character: and by laying the scene in what age and country I pleased, pictures of ancient manners might be drawn, and many allusions to historic events introduced to bring the action nearer to the imagination of the spectator. The moral resulting from the calamities attendant on an unbounded passion, even to the destruction of the criminal person's race, was obvioufly fuited to the purpose and object of tragedy.

The fubject is more truly horrid than even that of Oedipus: and yet I do not doubt but a Grecian poet would have made no scruple of exhibiting it on the theatre. Revolting as it is, a son assassing his mother, as Orestes does, exceeds the guilt that appears in the foregoing scenes. As murder is the highest crime that a man can commit against his fellow beings, parricide is the deepest degree of murder. No age but has suffered such guilt to be represented on the stage. And yet I feel the disgust that must arise at the catastrophe of this piece; so much is our delicacy more apt to be shocked than our good-nature. Nor will it be an excuse that I thought the story founded on an event in real life.

I had heard, when very young, that a gentlewoman, under uncommon agonies of mind, had waited on archbishop Tillotson, and befought his counsel. Many years before, a damfel that served her, had acquainted her that that the was importuned by the gentlewoman's fon to grant him a private meeting. The mother ordered the maiden to make the affignation, when, the faid, the would discover herself, and reprimand him for his criminal passion: but being hurried away by a much more criminal passion herself, the kept the affignation without discovering herself. The fruit of this horrid artifice was a daughter, whom the gentlewoman caused to be educated very privately in the country: but proving very lovely, and being accidentally met by her father-brother, who had never had the slightest suspicion of the truth, he had fallen in love with and actually married her. The wretched guilty mother, learning what had happened, and distracted with the consequence of her crime, had now reforted to the archbishop to know in what manner she should act. The prelate charged her never to let her son and daughter know what had passed, as they were innocent of any criminal intention. For herself, he bade her almost despair.

Some time after I had finished the play on this ground-work, a gentleman to whom I had communicated it, accidentally discovered the origin of the tradition in the novels of the queen of Navarre, vol. 1. nov. 30. and to my great surprise I found a strange concurrence of circumstances between the story as there related, and as I had adapted it to my piece: for though I believed it to have happened in the reign of king William, I had, for a purpose mentioned below, thrown it back to the eve of the reformation; and the queen, it appears, dates the event in the reign of Louis XII. I had chosen Narbonne for the scene; the queen places it in Languedoc. These rencounters are of little importance; and perhaps curious to nobody but the author.

In order to make use of a canvass so shocking, it was necessary as much as possible to palliate the crime, and raise the character of the criminal. To attain the former end, I imagined the moment in which she had lost a beloved husband, when grief, disappointment, and a conflict of passions might be supposed to have thrown her reason off its guard, and exposed her to the danger under which she fell. Strange as the moment may seem for vice to have seized her, still it makes her less hateful, than if she had coolly meditated so foul a crime. I have endeavoured to make her very sondness for her husband in some measure the cause of her guilt.

But

But as that guilt could not be leffened without destroying the subject itself, I thought that her immediate horror and consequential repentance were effential towards effectuating her being suffered on the stage. Still more was necessary: the audience must be prejudiced in her favour; or an uniform sentiment of disgust would have been raised against the whole piece. For this reason I suppressed the story till the last scene; and bestowed every ornament of sense, unbigoted piety, and interesting contrition, on the character that was at last to raise universal indignation; in hopes that some degree of pity would linger in the breasts of the audience; and that a whole life of virtue and penance might in some measure atone for a moment, though a most odious moment, of a deprayed imagination.

Some of my friends have thought that I have pushed the sublimity of sense and reason, in the character of the Counters, to too great a height, considering the dark and superstitious age in which she lived. They are of opinion that the excess of her repentance would have been more likely to have thrown her into the arms of enthusiasm. Perhaps it might—but I was willing to infinuate that virtue could and ought to leave more lasting stings in a mind conscious of having fallen; and that weak minds alone believe or feel that conscience is to be hulled assep by the incantations of bigotry. However, to reconcile even the seeming inconsistence objected to, I have placed my fable at the dawn of the reformation; consequently the strength of mind in the Counters may be supposed to have borrowed aid from other sources, besides those she found in her own understanding.

Her character is certainly new, and the cast of the whole play unlike any other that I am acquainted with. The incidents seem to me to flow naturally from the situation; and with all the desects in the writing, of many of which I am conscious, and many more no doubt will be discovered, still I think, as a tragedy, its greatest fault is the horror which it must occasion in the audience; particularly in the fairer, more tender, and less criminal part of it.

It will be observed that, after the discovery of her son, the Countess is for some moments in every scene disordered in her understanding by the violent impression impression of that interview, and from the guilt that is ever uppermost in her mind. Yet she is never quite mad—still less does she talk like Belvidera of which is not being mad, but light-headed. When madness has taken posfession of a person, such character ceases to be fit for the stage; or at least should appear there but for a short time; it being the business of the theatre to exhibit passions, not distempers. The finest picture ever drawn of a head discomposed by misfortune is that of king Lear. His thoughts dwell on the ingratitude of his daughters, and every sentence that falls from his wildness excites resection and pity. Had phrensy entirely seized him, our compassion would abate: we should conclude that he no longer felt unhappiness. Shakespeare wrote as a philosopher, Otway as a poet.

128 POSTSCRIPT.

"Lutes, laurels, feas of milk, and ships of amber;"

The villainy of Benedict was planned to divide the indignation of the audience, and to intercept fome of it from the Counters. Nor will the blackness of his character appear extravagant, if we call to mind the crimes committed by catholic churchmen, when the reformation not only provoked their rage, but threatened them with total ruin.

I have faid that terror and pity naturally arose from the subject, and that the moral is just. These are the merits of the story, not of the author. It is true also, that the rules laid down by the critics are strictly inherent in the piece—remark, I do not say, observed; for I had written above three acts before I had thought of, or set myself to observe those rules; and consequently it is no vanity to say that the three unities reign throughout the whole play. The time necessary is not above two or three hours longer than that of the representation; and at most does not require half of the four-and-twenty hours granted to poets by those their masters. The unity of place is but once shifted, and that merely from the platform without the castle to the garden within it, so that a single wall is the sole infringement of the second law—and for the third, unity of action, it is so entire, that not the smallest episode intervenes. Every scene tends to bring on the catastrophe, and the story is never interrupted or diverted from its course. The return of Edmund and his marriage necessary produce the denouement.

If the critics are pleafed with this conformity to their laws, I shall be glad they have that satisfaction. For my own part, I set little value on such merit, which was accidental, and is at best mechanic, and of a subordinate kind; and more apt to produce improbable situations than to remove them.

I wish I had no more to answer for in the faults of the piece, than I have merit to boast in the mechanism. I was desirous of striking a little out of the common road, and to introduce some novelty on our stage. Our genius and cast of thinking are very different from the French; and yet our theatre, which should represent manners, depends almost entirely at present on translations and copies from our neighbours. Enslaved as they are to rules and modes, still I do not doubt, but many both of their tragic and comic authors would be glad they dared to use the liberties that are secured to our stage. They are so cramped by the rigorous forms of composition, that they would think themselves greatly indemnised by an ampler latitude of thought. I have chalked out some paths that may be happily improved by better poets and men of more genius than I posses; and which may be introduced in subjects better calculated for action than the story I have chosen.

The excellence of our dramatic writers is by no means equal in number to the great men we have produced in other walks. Theatric genius lay dormant after Shakespeare; waked with some bold and glorious, but irregular and often ridiculous slights in Dryden; revived in Otway; maintained a placid pleasing kind of dignity in Rowe, and even shone in his Jane Shore. It trod in sublime and classic fetters in Cato, but void of nature, or the power of affecting the passions. In Southern it seemed a genuine ray of nature and Shakespeare; but falling on an age still more Hottentot, was stissed in those gross and barbarous productions, tragicomedies. It turned to tuneful nonsense in the Mourning Bride; grew stark mad in Lee; whose cloak, a little the worse for wear, fell on Young; yet in both was still a poet's cloak. It recovered its senses in Hughes and Fenton, who were afraid it should relapse, and accordingly kept it down with a timid, but amiable hand—and then it languished. We have not mounted again above the two last.
